Laborite Shouts At Parliament Opening Ceremony In London

"What About Unemployment Cuts?" Asks J. McGovern, Glasgow, Just After King Completes Reading of Speech From Throne; No Mention of Incident During Later Debate in Commons

Opening Seen In Traditional Style

By THOMAS C. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Nov. 21.—Fifty John McGovern, Glasgow Labor left winger, created a remarkable scene in the House of Lords to-day just as the King had concluded reading the speech from the Throne, in the midst of a brilliant setting, opening the new session of Parliament.

The King, with Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York at his side, in the centre of an assemblage of the peers, bishops, government ministers and members of the Commons, had just concluded the speech which pledged Britain's continued efforts toward a world disarmament agreement and declared there was a steady growth of confidence in the industrial future.

His Majesty was handing the copy back to the Lord Chancellor, who waited on bended knee, when a voice rang out loudly from among the cluster of members of the Commons assembled under the gallery near the door, behind Prime Minister MacDonald and opposition leaders.

"What about measures for the abolition of the means test and the unemployment cuts?" clamored the voice. NO PAUSE IN CEREMONY

The King glanced in the direction whence it came, and the Queen betrayed no sign she had heard any interruption. Without the slightest pause the King gave his hand to the Queen and conducted her from the door, preceded by the high officers of state.

The voice was so clear the interruption could not have escaped the hearing of anyone within the chamber; nevertheless the company began to disperse without any ruffling of composure.

"It's a shame while people are starving," the interrupter added. The speaker was McGovern, who has twice been expelled from the Commons—once for seizing the mace.

ASK INQUIRY ON ELECTION

Langford C.C.F. Wants Charges of Esquimaux Irregularities Aired in House

Discussion on the floor of the House of Commons yesterday evening, a report by the Langford C.C.F. representative at the recent protest meeting held in Esquimaux.

Briefly the resolution, which was carried unanimously, stated that in view of the widespread and repeated allegations all over the riding to the effect that irregularities took place in the recent Esquimaux election, the provincial executive of the C.C.F. be informed and that C.C.F. members of the Legislature be requested to bring the matter up on the floor of the House and press for a full and public enquiry.

A further move, calling for an amendment to the Elections Act so that ballot papers should not pass out of the hands of the voter after marking until deposited into the box, was passed. It was felt the present method of having an official tear off the stub and drop the ballot into the box tended to destroy the secrecy of the ballot.

Even Work To Build Up B.C. Payrolls

Men Working Fifteen Hours a Day While Others Unemployed

Industry Must Co-operate to Put More Men on Wages, Says Minister

Hundreds of men in British Columbia who are now unemployed can be put back on payrolls without any extra cost to industries by a readjustment of working hours, Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, stated this morning.

Mr. Pearson, who during his term as member for Nanaimo in the Legislature has been an earnest advocate of co-operation between industry, labor and the government, to provide continuity of employment, finds as he enters upon his duties as a member of the Pattullo cabinet that scores of complaints have been filed with the Department of Labor of working as long as fifteen hours a day in major industries while other men trained in those industries are idle and in relief. The minister will direct his energies to seeing that industry throughout the province gives the greatest possible attention to limiting the number of hours men are permitted to work. Complaints of the excessive working days of many workers in British Columbia is one of the first matters to which he is giving attention. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

Spanish Election Count Is Slow

Associated Press
Madrid, Nov. 21.—With the count of the votes for 175 seats in the Spanish parliament still incomplete, slow returns to-day indicated the rightist parties were clinging to their lead over the left in Sunday's balloting by narrow margin. Of the 473 seats in the House, 102 had been won by rights and 136 by leftists.

Calgary, Nov. 21.—Calgary branch of the League for Social Reconstruction is expressing "its most determined opposition to the establishment in Canada of a privately owned central bank and strongly urges establishment of a central bank owned and controlled solely by the federal government in trust for the people of Canada." NEWFOUNDLAND MAY BE UNDER COMMISSION

Recommendation of Board Following Inquiry Into Finances Is That Form of Elected Government

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Suspension of the existing form of government in Newfoundland and establishment of an administrative commission of six to serve under the Governor is the basic recommendation of the royal commission which investigated conditions in the youngest Dominion this year. On fulfillment of this condition the government of the United Kingdom would be asked to assume general responsibility for the island finances until such time as Newfoundland should again become self-supporting. The report, a unanimous document, describes Newfoundland's burden of public debt as "wholly beyond the country's capacity," and states it is essential it should be lightened if the island is to be saved from the "imminent peril of financial collapse."

"Those (financial) difficulties," the report continues, "are largely due to the reckless waste and extravagance, and to absence of constructive and efficient administration, engendered by a political system which for a generation has been abused and exploited for personal or party ends." STRATOSPHERISTS COME DOWN SAFELY

Settle and Companion Sleep With Balloon in New Jersey Marsh Lands and in Morning Notify World of Whereabouts

Associated Press
Bridgeton, N.J., Nov. 21.—The stratosphere balloon of Lt.-Com. T. G. W. Settle and Major Chester L. M. Fordney rested on marsh land near Black Neck Road, southwest of Bridgeton, to-day, after a safe landing.

The aeronauts landed at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They wrapped themselves in the balloon and remained there until this morning, then went to the farm of S. N. Johnson.

At 8:44 to-day Maj. Fordney trudged through the marsh lands, walking until 9:30 a.m., when he reached the Johnson farm house, nine miles southwest of Bridgeton.

"I'm hungry and I'd like to use the telephone," calmly announced Fordney to the startled farmer. Then he took up the telephone and notified Chicago and the world of the balloonists' safe descent.

"We had a delightful and uneventful trip," Maj. Fordney said, "except that we came down so fast we had to throw things overboard as fast as we could to lighten ship."

"Although it was a pretty rapid landing, neither of us was hurt. We took our bearings and saw we were on marshy ground, surrounded by woods and that it would be best just to put up for the night. So we got out of the gondola, wrapped ourselves in the balloon and slept for the night."

GUARD AT BALLOON
"Leaving Tex" to stand watch over the balloon, I struck out for civilization at 8:44."

At this point Fordney showed he was still uncertain of the time by saying he had reached the farm house at 8 a.m. A bystander corrected him, and he said, "Oh, no, I guess it wasn't 8 o'clock. It was 9:30."

As he talked the stratosphere traveler was helping himself to a breakfast of fried ham, potatoes and black coffee. Meanwhile, by telephone, he was relaying across the country the details of the balloonists' experience as they descended. The new minister hammered home the government to the end of this month the new administration would be forced to find between $800,000 and $1,000,000 above the ordinary revenues.

While revealing this astounding condition, the new minister gave a ringing assurance that there would be no repudiation and no change in the B.C. as long as he and his colleagues could fight to protect the credit of the province. The swing toward improvement had already started, he declared.

Mr. Hart attacked the leaders of the late administration for failing to give the people a true picture of the provincial finances when the figures on the provincial debt, as quoted by both the late Premier and the late Finance Minister had not been correct, he maintained. These gentlemen had placed it at $150,000,000, and he had discovered the correct figure on the gross debt to be $166,998,595.54, which included the balance of $16,998,595.54 from 1929-1930 to 1932-1933, which had not been funded because the government did not exercise its borrowing power to do so.

The new minister hammered home these significant figures after a few preliminary remarks, in which he said he appreciated the honor conferred upon him as Finance Minister, and intended to give the people a clear picture of what faced him. (Turn to Page 3, Col. 6)

Province Needs $17,000,000 to Meet Current Commitments, Hon. John Hart Tells Audience

Treasury Bills of $10,000,000 and Deficits of $7,000,000 Outstanding, Finance Minister Says

Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, told the large audience at the Liberal rally in the Royal Victoria Theatre yesterday evening that he had been "absolutely shocked" to discover the state of the province's finances when he entered office.

"Do you know that I would have to sell $17,000,000 worth of bonds to cover up the recklessness and incompetence of the late administration, and then there would not be a penny left for new expenditures," he said.

Signed cheques to the total of more than $300,000 had been left unpaid because there were not sufficient funds to meet them, he declared. There was $151,000 in relief cheques alone, including an $11,000 cheque for the City of Victoria, and a $115,000 cheque for Vancouver, which the government dare not forward because they would not be honored at the bank.

The sinking funds of the province were short to the extent of $3,100,000, the minister had discovered. There were credits of $731,418 to the superannuation fund and $231,976 to the teachers' pension fund, but no cash in the treasury to meet them, except for $48,418.54 in the teachers' fund.

Nearly $1,500,000 had been borrowed for unemployment relief expenditures up to October 31 and had been spent for other purposes, he declared.

And to meet the current obligations of the government to the end of this month the new administration would be forced to find between $800,000 and $1,000,000 above the ordinary revenues.

ALASKA DEATH INVESTIGATED

Anchorage, Alaska, Nov. 21.—(Associated Press)—The United States marshal here has launched an investigation into the death of Edward Giles, well-known pioneer fur man of the Minchumina Lake district, whose body was found recently lying in the snow on the trail with the head crushed. His dogs were nearby, harnessed to their sled. Officers said they were uncertain whether Giles was from 1929-1930 as long as the new administration can fight to prevent it.

The gross provincial debt is $166,998,595.54, including deficits for 1929-30 to 1932-33, which have not been funded.

There will be no repudiation and no default in British Columbia as long as the new administration can fight to prevent it.

HIGHLIGHTS ON LIBERAL RALLY

PREMIER PATTULLO

Private enterprise cannot do it. The collective power of the people must be used to put people back at work. The government must take the initiative.

Billions would be forthcoming in case of war. Why not spend a few billions for the war on poverty?

You must use the national credit, which is only limited by the natural resources of the country, plus the man power that can be applied to them.

Mr. Hart is a man of unimpeachable integrity. His knowledge will be invaluable to this administration.

The use of national credit is not only justified, but is the only way the wheels of industry can be started. There are signs on the horizon the whole country is coming to this view.

The eyes of Canada, particularly political Canada, are on the six deferred elections in Victoria and Vancouver, B.C., and it is particularly political Canada we wish to impress.

If the election in Victoria had been on November 3 I am confident Victoria would have returned four Liberals. In fairness you should return four at the deferred election.

We want Victoria and Vancouver Centre to show Canada they are endorsing this administration by returning Liberal members to support it.

Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance:
The province requires $17,000,000 to balance its unpaid treasury bills and deficits up to November 15.

Signed cheques for $314,852.38 were left unused by the late government because there was not money in the bank to meet them.

Relief cheques totaling $151,000, including an $11,000 cheque for the City of Victoria, were not issued due to lack of funds.

Credits for the Superannuation Fund, the Teachers' Pension Fund, unemployment relief and public works to a total of approximately $2,000,000 are not available in the treasury.

The deficit in the sinking fund have reached the figure of $3,100,000, where there used to be a surplus.

The gross provincial debt is $166,998,595.54, including deficits for 1929-30 to 1932-33, which have not been funded.

There will be no repudiation and no default in British Columbia as long as the new administration can fight to prevent it.

POWER OF PEOPLE
"Millions have been spent on railways, billions on the fortifications in case of war. Where would those billions come from?" he asked. "If you confiscated all the cash in the Dominion it would not provide the billions to pay for the war. You have got to use the collective power of the people. You have got to use the national credit, which is limited by the natural resources plus the man power that can be applied to them."

Particularly Premier Pattullo appealed for the return of Mr. Hart to carry on as Minister of Finance. "He is a man of unimpeachable integrity and his knowledge will be invaluable to this administration," said the Premier. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 1)

Great Earth Shock Is Recorded Here

Observatory Observers Throughout World Report Quake at Baffin Bay

Tremor Is Described By F. N. Denison as "Worst in Thirty-five Years"

One of the greatest earthquakes recorded on the Gonzales Observatory instruments in the last thirty-five years, which, by unanimous opinion of observers throughout the world, centred in the region of Baffin Bay yesterday afternoon and evening, oscillated the Gonzales seismograph from 3.38.10 o'clock in the afternoon until nearly 8 o'clock at night.

Ottawa and London reports this morning stated the quake "shook the whole world," seismographs in nearly all countries reporting its record. There were no reports of any damage being caused by the tremor, and observers believe it centred on the ocean bottom, and probably caused drastic changes in the contours.

Preliminary reports of the quake at first baffled observatory directors owing to the fact that Baffin Bay and northern Canada are not generally considered earthquake areas. It is agreed now, however, that it did centre near Baffin Bay. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

STATES BRIDGE WORK NEEDED
Vancouver, Nov. 21.—"I refuse to believe for a moment intimations from New Westminster that Premier Pattullo will take any action to stop construction of the Ladner Bridge," declared Reeve R. M. Grauer of Richmond this forenoon.

"Mr. Pattullo was elected on a programme of 'work and wages,' and here is a definite example of a necessary work with wages continuing for two years, at least, attached to it," continued Mr. Grauer.

The bridge will cost $2,200,000, and of that amount $1,000,000 will be paid direct for wages. Construction has been under way on the enterprise for several weeks, and it is inconsiderable that for the sake of pleasing political supporters in New Westminster, Mr. Pattullo would interfere with it."

Government Must Take Initiative in Putting Workers of Dominion Back on Road to Prosperity

The collective power of the people must be used to start the people of Canada back on the road to prosperity. Public works must be started and millions of dollars must be spent throughout the Dominion to put people back at work and wages, Premier Pattullo told an audience at the Royal Victoria Theatre yesterday evening.

Work and wages was not a mere slogan, but an active policy, he declared amid cheers as he outlined his aims in detail. Private enterprise had proved its inability to put people back in industry. Government must take the initiative.

The meeting was one of the most memorable ever held in Victoria. C. H. O'Halloran presided over a crowd which packed the theatre, and on the platform was every member of the new cabinet and several of the newly-elected members of the Legislature. The four Victoria Liberal candidates were given a rousing reception, and Hon. John Hart made a great impression as he gave a clear-cut and striking revelation of the result of his investigations since he took over the portfolio of Minister of Finance a few days ago, and showed the alarming state of the treasury of the province has reached, with cheques issued for which there were no funds, and the gross debt of the province mis-represented by approximately $7,000,000.

Premier Pattullo made an earnest plea to Victoria electors to return four Liberal candidates to show their endorsement of the action the rest of the province has taken and to strengthen the hand of the administration in its appeal to Ottawa to bring into effect the policy which would put people of the province back at work.

HARDSHIPS OF PIONEERS TOLD

W. H. Halliday Relates Experiences During Early Days in British Columbia

Former Alert Bay Indian Agent Guest Speaker at Gyro Luncheon Meeting

"British Columbia is the finest province in the Dominion of Canada. It needs developing, however, and it is up to you younger men to continue this development. With the benevolent spirit which you have shown I know that we who have spent our lives in the interests of the province can safely trust that this work will be carried on," said W. H. Halliday, J.P., former Indian agent at Alert Bay, while addressing the Gyro Club on "Pioneering in British Columbia," at luncheon in the Empress Hotel yesterday.

The benevolence of the club referred to by the speaker was demonstrated in a report on welfare work which the club has been doing, submitted by Len Woodhouse.

Mr. Halliday described his early life in the province and told of many experiences while pioneering the country. "I am glad to learn of what you are doing for others," he stated. "For it was this spirit that actuated the pioneers."

He recalled that in 1883, when he had resided in Comox, his home was burned out on a Monday night. The whole community had turned out with tools and lumber and by Saturday night he and the remainder of his family had been living in their own home again.

No one would accept remuneration for his efforts, the entire move being one which was typical of the pioneering type, Mr. Halliday said.

Mr. Halliday's pioneering days began after he left high school in Victoria in 1882. In 1883, with his newly acquired wife, he went to Kingcome Inlet and later moved on to Alert Bay, where he spent the remainder of his active life, most of it as Indian agent until his recent retirement.

He recalled the hardships which had confronted him and Mrs. Halliday during their three-day journey in a rowboat from Kingcome Inlet to Alert Bay. They were met by severe storms, but when the trip was over it was regarded as all part of the daily life, for the only means of travel in that day had been by rowboat.

On May 15, next year, Mr. Halliday will observe his fortieth year as a justice of the peace in British Columbia. While at Alert Bay he had encountered little crime among the Indians. He cited three instances when the administration of justice had been necessary, but state "these occurrences had served to demonstrate to the Indians that the white man's law must be obeyed, and following them there had been little trouble."

President Dr. C. B. Moss moved the vote of thanks.

"The result of this long-distance confab, the studio announced here tonight, was that Jolson accepted an optional agreement whereby he would be the star in three more pictures."

"If I had been appointed Attorney-General, every one of those things would have been under way."

"If that cabinet had been presented to the electorate before the election—" "They would have been in," shouted some one of the audience.

"They wouldn't have carried ten seats, my friend," Mr. McGeer retorted. "I am not interested in being in the cabinet of Mr. Pattullo," he continued, "but as a member I am interested in the personnel of the cabinet."

"The reforms I fought for are drifting into the realm of impossibility," he continued. "We gave Mr. Pattullo a free mandate to choose the best men. He was not limited to the Liberal Party. He could have gone to the Conservative Party, to the C.C.F."

"Alex. Manson was more entitled to the position of Attorney-General than I, and had been given that post I would have had no fear the reforms I advocate would have been carried out."

At another point Mr. McGeer said: "We are all now agreed that it is high time someone in a position of political authority got out a pall of infection and went to the Legislature, a mop, cleansing our provincial and municipal system of maintaining law and order from garret to basement."

NO PROMISES
"Maybe I didn't want to go into the cabinet, but I wouldn't have been insulted if I'd been given the privilege of refusing. I respected Mr. Pattullo's mandate during the campaign. There were no promises, but the matter was once discussed and I was asked what I was interested in. I told them I was interested in nothing but the Attorney-Generalship. Then, after the election, Major Moodie informed me I was not to be in the cabinet, that Mr. Pattullo couldn't work with me. No man has a right to say that before he's tried to work with me. There was no objection to my team work when I went into the Okeananga, a Tory stronghold, and turned thousands of votes to the party, or when I fought the C.C.F."

"Yes, I'd be hard to work with if the government wanted to play with things I mean business with; but I'd be no worse than Mr. Sloan, who announces publicly that he will be dictated to by nobody."

Mr. McGeer said he would support the Liberal Government so long as he thought they were working for the common man; when he did not think so he would oppose with equal decision.

HANBURY SPEAKS
Visibly affected, Wilfred Hanbury, M.P., rose at the bid of the chairman. "I am a Liberal," he said, his voice tremulous with emotion. "I dissociate myself from every remark Mr. McGeer has made about Mr. Pattullo and the implied slander on my friend Gordon Sloan. It is up to Liberals to go down to Vancouver Centre and show Duff Pattullo what we can do on November 27."

Mr. McGeer was on his feet again. "I'll give Mr. Hanbury fair warning that I'll probably be a federal candidate in Burrard at the next election."

STATESMAN TO LECTURE HERE

Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland to Speak at Empress in Education Series

Was Born in India, Has Traveled Widely and Is Student of Economics

SIR ARTHUR STEEL-MAITLAND

Next in the series of lectures on economics, sponsored by the National Council of Education in this city, will be given by Rt. Hon. Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, who will arrive here on Tuesday, November 28, on the evening of which day he will speak at the Empress Hotel on "Britain and World Stability."

Sir Arthur, who was Minister of Labor in the British Government from 1924 to 1929, will be in the city for three days at Government House.

Sir Arthur's present visit follows immediately on a tour of the United States in the course of which he studied the effect of the NRA at the invitation of the Rockefeller Institute. During his lecture here he will tell something of his impressions on the recovery programme.

His experience as a statesman and public speaker, combined with his democratic principles and interest in all questions concerning the welfare of mankind as a whole, guarantee to his listeners an excellent lecture.

BORN IN INDIA
He was born in India in 1876, educated at Rugby and Balliol College, Oxford, and began his career in an original way by attaching himself to a settlement in the East End of London, where he actively helped and studied the poorest of London's poor.

One of his first pieces of public work that he undertook was in official inquiry in 1908 into Poor Law conditions and the cause of pauperism, this report, compiled in collaboration with the Hon. Sir John Lubbock, one of the most valuable of his year. In 1910 he became Conservative member for East Birmingham, and has represented the same constituency almost continuously since.

In 1911 he was appointed chairman of the Conservative Party, then became Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, and later Secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade, and Minister of Labor in the Baldwin Ministry (1924). Just before taking this portfolio he was in charge of the League of Nations since its inception.

Moreover great his preoccupation with onerous official duties, Sir Arthur always found time to take a real and active interest in educational matters. He was, himself, one of the first students at the London School of Economics in 1901, and he has been an active supporter of the League of Nations since its inception.

He pledged the party to do everything in its power to balance the budget and restore confidence and prosperity in the province, at the same time promising the low-wage earners relief from the 1 per cent tax imposed by the late administration. The details of this remedy would be given out at a later date, he said.

He discussed briefly, then, the new government's proposals to remedy the situation. First, to deal with the enormous $12,000,000 annual debt charges, it would be necessary to embark upon a refunding scheme, probably on the London market and the investors would be asked to accept a lower rate of interest on B.C. bonds or take their money dollar for dollar.

"And I'll promise you there'll be no repudiation and no default before every effort we can make has been exhausted to the limit to find a solution for the problem, and my colleagues are with me in this," he declared.

BEER GARDENS FOR NEW YORK SOON

New York, Nov. 21.—The New York Times correspondent "covering" the vacation of Fiorello La Guardia, reports from Panama the mayor-elect of New York plans to seek construction of artistic beer gardens on the banks of the Harlem River and such other restful localities throughout the city. In beautifying his native city, Mr. La Guardia plans to give "beer gardens" like those of Vienna. They would have music as a recreational measure, but this would involve no profit to the promoters. The gardens would be laid out artistically on land owned by the city. Mr. La Guardia said he had visited Vienna twenty years ago and had been impressed favorably by its beer-selling establishments.

B.C. Refunding Loan Immediate Plan

SHOCKED BY FIGURES
"While I knew things were in a very bad way, I was appalled and shocked when I delved in the records of the department," he said. "It took a day and a night to repeat itself, for when I took over in 1916 the treasury was here and we had to make a complete reorganization of the provincial financial system."

He recalled how, during the campaign, he had taken issue with Premier Tominie's statements on the question of debt. His investigation had adequately justified his stand in this respect.

The treasury-to-day was short more than $17,000,000, as represented by treasury bills and unfunded deficits, he explained. This very condition had been forecast when Mr. Pattullo attacked the last Jones budget in March.

FRANCIS LOAN APPEAL
Because of this disastrous condition of the finances the late government had been turned down in its financial appeals on this continent and had been forced to go to London to float a loan of £1,500,000. To do so, it had paid out five different commissions and brokerages, in addition to receiving a low price for the bonds, with the result that the province received only $83.40 for every $100 bond issued.

Dealing with the sinking funds, Mr. Hart recalled how these funds had been placed on a sound basis under the former Liberal regime with yearly surpluses by the astute investment of the bonds of which they are composed. When Mr. Jones delivered his last budget he had stated the surplus was still there, but fifteen days later it was proved there actually existed a deficit of $1,440,000. Since that time the deficit had grown to $3,100,000, and there was no chance of straightening this out within a year at least.

Mr. Hart gave exact figures on the condition of the various funds as he had found them.

HUGE OVERDRAFT
When he entered office he was told there was $232,553.38 in the treasury, but discovered on the other hand, treasury records showing overdrafts on current account of $1,009,509.57, including outstanding cheques and cheques signed but not issued at November 15. The signed cheques held in the treasury on account of not sufficient funds totaled $314,952.89.

Money which should have been laying to the account of the superannuation fund, the teachers' pension fund and unemployment relief had been taken and used for other purposes, the finance minister declared.

In addition, there was an amount of $741,003.94 which had been borrowed for building, roads, bridges and other public works, including the Victoria courthouse, which had not been expended, but which was not available in the treasury.

The final analysis was contained in the information that in order to pay off treasury bills outstanding on November 15, and to meet deficits up to March 21, and still outstanding when the new government took over, the province would have to borrow $17,556,534.54.

"You must realize," he said, "that to meet these obligations the only avenue I have is to go out and borrow."

TURN FOR BETTER
"However, we now have a business premier, and I hope I may be permitted to say, a business cabinet. I find already that things are beginning to improve," he continued, amid applause and good-natured laughter.

"And I approach the end of the month with every confidence that the extra million we need to meet current obligations will be found."

He pledged the party to do everything in its power to balance the budget and restore confidence and prosperity in the province, at the same time promising the low-wage earners relief from the 1 per cent tax imposed by the late administration. The details of this remedy would be given out at a later date, he said.

TELLING THE PUBLIC THE FACTS

At last night's meeting in the Royal Victoria Theatre, Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance in the Pattullo government, took the public into his confidence and described to them in language everybody could understand just how the finances of the province stand. It was his first speech since he accepted the Premier's invitation to join the ministry and he gave the public the welcome assurance that the business of his important department will be an open book. The taxpayer in future will know exactly what is being done with his money.

While Mr. Hart knew that all was not well with the affairs of the treasury, he had to confess to his large audience last night that the condition he had found there not only had surprised him, but had "absolutely shocked" him. The Minister did not leave the matter by merely exposing the actual state of affairs, serious as this obviously is; he announced that in the few days that had elapsed since he took charge of the finance department things had begun to show an improvement. Recognizing, however, there is no magic wand to bring dollars out of the air to meet the pressing obligations with which the province is faced, Mr. Hart explained that he would apply remedies in order to meet the emergency and furnish the foundation for a sounder financial structure.

The stark fact is that the treasury to-day is short more than $17,000,000, as represented by treasury bills and unfunded deficits. For example, the Minister pointed out, signed cheques to the total of more than $300,000 have been left unpaid because there is not sufficient funds to meet them. Of this amount $151,000 represents relief cheques, including one for the city of Victoria for $11,000 and another for $115,000 due the city of Vancouver—which the government dare not send out because they would not be honored by the bank. Mr. Hart also explained that the sinking funds of the province were short to the extent of $3,100,000; there were credits of $731,418 to the superannuation fund and $231,976 to the teachers' pension fund. But there is no cash in the treasury with which to meet them save $46,418.04 in the teachers' fund. The Minister added to this unpleasant chapter the fact that nearly $1,500,000 had been borrowed for unemployment relief up to October 31. But it had been spent for other purposes. Then, too, the debt had been placed by the late government at $159,000,000; Mr. Hart found the total to be $166,998,595.54.

This was not a particularly inspiring situation which the Minister quite properly considered it his bounden duty to describe. The fact that to meet the current obligations of the government to the end of this month the new administration would have to find between $800,000 and $1,000,000 above the ordinary revenues naturally did not make it any easier for him. But in spite of this situation Mr. Hart assured the public that there will be no repudiation and no default in British Columbia. He recognizes, however, as everybody does, that there must be readjustments, that interest rates must come down. All governments have had to resort to refunding measures. British Columbia will have to make a changed economic state in similar manner. Moreover, the Minister declared, the swing toward improvement of conditions already had started, and steps were under way to accelerate the process.

Premier Pattullo had heard his Minister of Finance tell the story of the treasury, and, taking it for granted that the people of Victoria would return Mr. Hart and enable him to carry on the work he already had started, he alluded to his colleague as "a man of unimpeachable integrity" whose knowledge "will be invaluable to this administration." Mr. Pattullo made it clear also that difficult as the financial situation may be, he proposes to take drastic steps to overcome the general disabilities under which the province is laboring.

On the all-important subject of unemployment, the Premier declared that the collective power of the people would have to be employed to solve the problem; the national credit, the credit which is limited by the natural resources of the country plus the man power that can be applied to them, would have to be used. If millions could be found to fight the last war, as millions would be found if there were to be another war, Mr. Pattullo wanted to know why the country's credit could not be organized to wage war against unemployment and distress. He told his audience that it was his intention to go to Ottawa to press for a conference between the Dominion and the provinces, and at such a gathering he would advocate policies—already familiar to the people of British Columbia—calculated to bring into reality a condition of "work and wages" to which he has pledged himself and his supporters.

Mr. Pattullo had no apologies to make and no regrets to offer for his ministerial selections. He had first of all paid strict regard to ability to fill the job; but in this he had been considerably embarrassed because among those elected to support him in the Legislature he could easily find sufficient talent for three or four governments, any one of which would render a good account of itself. He had exercised the mandate given him by the party more than twelve months ago, however, and had called men in to assist him who not only were able men, but in whose selection he felt he had paid proper regard to geographical claims for ministerial representation.

In Victoria City and in Vancouver Centre next Monday six members will be elected. Mr. Pattullo asks, and it will be in the best interests of the people to grant his request, that six Liberals be sent to the Legislature to strengthen still more the hands of the government in its task. The Premier is particularly desirous that he be given this further endorsement for the reason that when he goes to Ottawa he will be able to press his claims with the knowledge that he has ample support from the people of this province. Obviously, of course, a strong government is a great deal more important than a strong opposition. Victoria should see to it that four Liberals lead the polls on the 27th.

TALK, TALK, TALK

It will be two years next February since the Disarmament Conference began its deliberations at Geneva. The delegates, it is true, have taken time off to cool off on one or two occasions. But to all intents and purposes the conference has been in session in one form or another for about twenty months. Now it has been decided that the parley shall stand adjourned until the beginning of 1934.

The Italians to-day argued for complete cessation of the conference's sub-committees during the suspension of efforts to reach an agreement on the main question. France insisted that the committees meet as usual. The United States representative—quite wisely—abstained from participation in the discussion between the delegates of the two European countries. The point about the Disarmament Conference at this stage which will strike most people is that unless the delegates bring themselves to discuss disarmament as if it were really the subject of their deliberations, somebody will suggest that a new disarmament conference be called to disarm the Disarmament Conference which has now grown old in fighting polemics.

NO FUSION IN BRITAIN

During the recent election campaign in British Columbia we heard a good deal about the disappearance of party government in Great Britain. It did not seem to occur to those who thought it was high time for this province to follow this so-called example of party hatchet-burying that no fewer than 469 members of the House of Commons, out of a total membership of 615, were elected in 1931 as straight Conservatives, Laborites and Liberals who supported the National, or Coalition, government accounting for only forty-eight between them.

The sequel of the political truce of 1931, however, is now appearing in a form which has long been expected. The few who are not in the Conservative fold, but who threw in their lot with the National Government, are beginning to discover that their room in the inner councils would be preferred to their presence. There has been a serious attempt to fuse the three parties at present represented in Premier MacDonald's cabinet; but it has failed, and when the next general election is fought the government will fight it as a Coalition—not as a fusionist—government. Negotiations which have been going on for some weeks apparently have been wrecked on the rock of Conservative opposition. We are told that although ex-Premier Baldwin is personally favorable, his followers do not take at all kindly to the idea of being led by a Labor Prime Minister, or welcome as candidates at the next election Liberals who fought them in constituencies for a generation or more.

Mr. MacDonald naturally would like to lead a "fused" party to the polls. Sir John Simon, for the National Liberals, even has gone so far as to say "we are all Socialists now," pleading for a union of the progressive forces of the three parties. But there is little chance of it working. Mr. Baldwin may give the Coalition his blessing. He knows, however, that the Conservative party has a very considerable fighting fund and is in no mood to throw away what it considers an excellent chance of getting rid of the "progressive" forces to which Sir John Simon alludes.

The Conservative following in the present House of Commons, of course, may suggest that the party will be able to carry the country at the next general election. There is by no means any guarantee that it will do anything of the kind. Recent by-elections have shown a distinct reversal of public opinion. Labor has gained ground at the expense of the government. Benevolently-neutral Liberals, thirty in number, have now crossed the floor and, presumably, will support the major opposition. This may mean a Labor-Liberal merger, which, for the time being, the government need not fear from the point of view of a House majority. The next twelve months, however, will be interesting in Britain's political realm.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

LEARNING THE LESSON
The U.S. Ambassador at London

"For years the majority of American people believed that the higher the tariff, the higher wages and the general level of prosperity in the country would be. Now they have learned the grim lessons that, with the highest tariff the country has ever had, more than 13,000,000 people have no wages at all. By bitter experience they have learned how unfounded this tariff doctrine is. They have learned how impossible it is to continue selling when they do not buy, and they at last are prepared, through proper agreement, to lower tariff barriers so that international trade may begin to move again."

NATURE AND NRA
The Toronto Telegram

When an important measure of farm recovery has been accomplished it will probably be through the workings of a "cosmic NRA" rather than the variety of NRA now flourishing in the United States. The small part a government can play in regulating yields of natural products is now being demonstrated quite clearly in the United States. Grain production will be close to an all-time low as a result of natural causes. Human efforts were not needed to hold the crop down. On the other hand, millions of acres of cotton were ploughed under, with the purpose of preventing a surplus, yet growth has been so heavy that the crop will hold close to the annual average. After studying wheat crops and prices in his country for a period of years, a United States economist has reached the conclusion that there are but eleven chances in sixteen that a cut in acreage will bring a reduction in yield. There is slightly less than one chance in two that decreased acreage will bring an increased dollar income to the farmer, while there is just an even chance that the dollar income can be predicted when the production is known.

A THOUGHT

Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.—James v. 1.
One cause of the insufficiency of riches (to produce happiness) is that they very seldom make their owner rich.—Johnson.

Loose Ends

Another dangerous movement hits the world—the fight is on and the Big Boys are in the open—a poor soul is discovered on the edge of civilization—and the collection next door proceeds somewhat slowly.

By H. B. W.

NASTY IDEA

ANOTHER of those dangerous movements for saving the world has just emerged. They are going to educate golfers not to swear. This reform, so far as I can gather, it is not proposed on moral or religious grounds, but simply on the score of good manners, and it is pointed out, in extenuation of it, that the best golfers in the world don't swear (simply, of course, because they don't have to). Well, I hope the movement is as dim as a flap as all recent efforts to save the world. It is a vile and unnatural idea altogether. The one respectable and natural feature of golf is that it permits its addicts to humanize themselves with unrestrained outpourings of primitive human emotion, which is healthful and preserves the last shreds of sanity. Golf itself is a most unnatural and inhuman pursuit and, as I have had occasion to observe here before, it produces a curious race of men apart from their fellows, who look down on the rest of humanity with fine contempt.

It is only through the outbursts of rage when a short putt isn't sunk that these fellows are redeemed and kept human at all. It is only through their occasional humiliation and despair, which finds its expression in a blasphemy of splendid hue, that other men can still feel any sense of equality with them. Let them subdue their anger, let them stop blaspheming and there will be no holding them. They will think themselves immortal. They will become intolerable altogether. They will probably assume control of the state entirely; for any man who can play golf without swearing must be a superman, the kind of dangerous person who makes Fascism and predatory aristocracies and finally revolutions.

Take blasphemy out of golf and it becomes inhuman, inexcusable, without any extenuating circumstance. Make it respectable and it becomes irreparable. But I have no real fear of that, for I once played golf, briefly and ingenuously myself, and I know. Later I was saved. I quit because I couldn't keep up in the game with the progress of my able friends. Their vocabularies were so much juicier.

FIGHT IS ON

THE FIGHT between President Roosevelt and the Big Boys has come out into the open a little before one expected. The Big Boys, alarmed at the President's efforts to end the depression, are demanding through the U.S. Chamber of Commerce that he return to sound money, and they are going to look into the NRA scheme as well, which they all secretly loathe. I told you weeks ago that this would happen, but it was no feat of prophecy. It was obvious and mathematical. That is to say, if you are to end this depression, you must redistribute wealth. If you redistribute wealth, you must take it away from someone who has it and convey it, through work, to someone who hasn't. The someone who has it is not going to like that process in the least. He is going to fight with all the weapons at his command. He is going to smash you and your program. He is going to be every means in his power.

That, precisely, is what will happen across the line. Those who have wealth in large quantities, the two per cent who control eighty per cent of the nation's money, will fight any scheme which threatens to take part of it away from them. Any scheme which doesn't threaten to take part of it away from them, is useless and meaningless. Therefore, any scheme of the President's which doesn't provoke fierce protests from the Big Boys is no good at all. If it didn't provoke them, you could write it off as hopeless. The fact that they are provoked and are fighting in the open means that the most cheering feature in the whole

POOR SOUL

THE OTHER day I saw a neat slice of civilization at the Empress Hotel. You can often see one there if you keep your eyes open. In a distant and darkened corner of the tea room, almost out of sight, an aged lady was playing a piano, playing it alone there, quite oblivious of her surroundings, playing old airs and snatches from operas as fast as they came into her head, playing them vigorously, exquisitely, like a master of the piano, until the music rolled through the vast unexplored regions of the hotel.

A couple of old people went into the tea room and sat down quietly to listen. Some other fellows, to whom I happened to be attached at the moment and couldn't leave (since they were going to pay for the lunch), walked past towards the dining-room. They paused for a moment to observe the aged lady at the piano and one of them said, "Poor old soul," meaning, quite clearly, that the pianist wasn't quite right in the head; otherwise, no doubt, she would be sitting by a radio and listening to an orchestra in Prisco or New York.

To these civilized fellows it seemed unnatural that anybody should want to play a piano simply for the fun of playing it; whereas it was the most natural and primitive instinct in the world and as old as humanity. Here was an artist enjoying her art without thought of reward. But what we were about to do, to gaze and rife food brought by waiters in uniform and to talk about the depression, was an unnatural, a respectable and a vile thing. When we came out of the dining-room the old lady was still playing, but a couple of flappers at the other end of the tea room, having lighted cigarettes, were turning on the radio. They and we were the civilized creatures. The splendid old barbarian at the piano went on playing, oblivious to everything but her music.

RELICS

THE COLLECTION of old toys next door for the Boy Scouts, who rebuild and distribute them at Christmas, is not proceeding as satisfactorily as one could desire. Kitty, the Great Big Doll, who came last Christmas, was the first to be placed in the box for the Scouts, having already lost both arms, one leg and a piece of her nose; but in a moment of maternal compassion the little girl next door dragged her forth again and put her to bed.

"There's a lot of good use in Kitty yet," said her owner. "Of course, she's lost her arms and a leg, but Holy Moses, look at the fine body on her, and she still squeaks all right!"

It was decided then to substitute Belinda Puddle Duck, the woolly creature who used to have webbed feet and a yellow beak before they were removed with violence. But the little boy next door couldn't give up Belinda

Puddle Duck. He has always taken Belinda to bed with him (where, it is surmised, he removed the poor bird's feet and beak to amuse himself in the early morning before other people are awake). So Belinda disappeared from the Scouts' box, too, and turned up near the woodpile outside, two days later, somewhat soggy.

The red toy engine was destined for the Scouts because it had lost a wheel and its smokestack, but its owner discovered that you could still make it run if you pulled it hard enough on a string, even if it ran on its side. So, of course, it had to be kept. So did the dancing bear, who, although he has long since ceased to dance (his dancing organism having been removed through an incision in his back), is still an excellent bear, even if quite hollow in the middle, and too crippled even to walk.

It was thought that the Scouts might have the blue doll's carriage, since there is nothing left of it but the wheels and a weak platform on top of them; but the little boy next door rescued it just in time. He used it to slide down the big hill to the vegetable garden.

In the end all they could find next door for the Scouts was Johnnie Monk, the brown monkey who has been living a vagabond life about here for the last five years; poor old Johnnie, who never had any friends, who never managed to get taken to bed like Kitty and Belinda Puddle Duck, who has never felt any demonstration of affection and consequently has never lost a leg or an arm and remains in good health and in utter loneliness to this day. Johnnie is going to the Scouts and as he lay there in the box, sprawled out on his stomach, I think in his heart he was glad to go, and when the grey elephant called Jumbo (another unpopular resident) was tossed in beside him, I think they said one to another, "We're well out of this house. Maybe where we're going will have some fun."

The Victoria Y.M.C.A. basketball team had an easy thing last evening when they met Bellingham Y.M.C.A. at the assembly rink and at the close of the game had an easy lead of sixteen points. The score was Victoria 33, Bellingham 17, while the result of the first half was Victoria 15, Bellingham 5.

The steamer Princess Royal goes back on the run between Vancouver and Seattle to-morrow and the old schedule on the Victoria-Vancouver and Seattle routes will be resumed.

This has been a year of building homes in Victoria. No more striking proof can be furnished of the growth of the capital's population than is found in the records of the building inspector. These show that the bulk of the construction work for which permits have been issued has been residential. Of the 510 permits issued since the year began some 370 were dwelling houses. As some were for two or more houses the actual number of new homes represented is about four hundred.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

OF PRIDE
Once I was proud, but that was long ago,
For now I know that life is too fleet for pride.
See how the years gain swift wings as they fly.
And who can stem the force of that tide?
Once I was proud, but pride is folly's twin,
The stubborn pride that cannot see right
And blocks the way when wiser love would win.
The road to a serene and starry height.
So I have learned to trust humility To glean what harsh demands could never gain.
I have put cold disdain away from me,
For pride leads down along dark paths of pain.
Now I'm proud of this, and this alone:
That pride's low worth I have been rightly shown.

To the Editor:—I was pleased to see in Sunday's Colonist that Mr. F. A. Of course, Mr. Thornley is not the only person who has read those pieces of propaganda and seen through them. They have really been overdone. misrepresentation of facts in these articles and in the reports of the different speeches at the different political meetings gives one to think. For instance, was the reporter asleep when Mr. Winch, the newly-elected member for Vancouver, in a meeting held here recently, said he was only anxious to work with the government in all matters for the welfare of the people? Of course, the reporter was asleep, or he would have reported the meeting correctly, because he would have no reason to do otherwise, would he? I have been to most of the big political meetings held in the city, and I may tell you, Mr. Editor, that a most without exception these reports have been twisted, misconstrued, and important parts left out.

Why is it impossible to get straightforward, truthful account of political meetings? Why is it that the

C.C.F. Not Concerned With Policy For British Columbia Now, Says Speaker

Capitalistic System Produces Regimentation; History of Machines Related

"The co-operative Commonwealth Federation is not specifically concerned with a policy for this province since the events of November 2," declared Rev. Robert Connell, C.C.F. candidate in Victoria, in speaking to a meeting held at St. Mary's Hall in Oak Bay yesterday evening. Other C.C.F. nominees to speak at the meeting were V. R. Midgley and W. B. Caird. R. G. Miller was the chairman for the meeting which was attended by about thirty-five people.

The main idea of the C.C.F. now was to educate the people to the seriousness of the situation. It was not necessary to take the word of the various C.C.F. speakers as to the condition things were in at the present time, the speaker declared, but by going to the library the public would find hundreds of books which set forth, in even more stringent terms, what the C.C.F. said would happen if the present ent economic system was allowed to continue.

With regard to the proposed economic planning as outlined in the C.C.F. platform it was not a new idea. It had been expressed in practically the same words many years ago by the famous English writer and art critic, John Ruskin. Production for use and distribution as needed was an essential and fundamental thing, said Mr. Connell.

"It is a commonsense idea," he said. "Suppose Soviet Russia does it? Is it any reason why we should let our affairs go to seed?"

DOMINATES PRIVATE LIFE

Declaring that the present capitalistic system not only dominated our business life, but our private affairs as well, he reiterated the thought expressed by the other speakers, in saying that it did not allow enough play for individuals. The proposed system, he said, would give greater play for the individualist. There would be regimentation in the economic system, but in private life there would be no such thing.

The idea that regimentation of an economic system necessarily meant that private endeavor should be regimented was foolish, he said. Taking as an illustration the feudal system of England during the medieval ages, which was a perfect example of a regimented economic system, he pointed out that perhaps at no time had there been greater play for individualism. The various "books of hours" that had been produced and the splendid architecture, each of which was different to those produced before, were cited as an example of what could be accomplished by individuals.

TRACES MACHINE AGE

Mr. Caird in his speech gave a comprehensive survey of the history of the machine age from the time of James Watt, the inventor of the modern steam engine, down to the present day. He was emphasizing the fact that, prior to the invention of the steam engine, energy had been measured in terms of man power, and was now calculated in horsepower, he showed how each succeeding generation had developed machinery to such an extent that more and more men were being thrown out of work.

He gave several examples of what machines were capable of doing at the present time, and said that one machine could now do the work of twenty-four hours that could only have been accomplished by 9,000,000 men before.

MUST FACE FACTS

"We must look into the face of things, recognize the difficulties and set out to combat them," he said. He summarized briefly the evils caused by the development of machinery.

"What this people must make up their minds to is that some kind of a planned economy must be undertaken under this system. At the present time each individual is working for his own good and not for the good of the community as a whole, as some would have us believe. It has come to such a pass now that a large number of the members of the community are not in a livelihood which, after all, is the objective of an economic system."

"We are called upon to recognize these changes, and we must do something about it. We must prepare a new system, not only for ourselves, but for the coming generation who will handle affairs, when we are no longer able to do so."

A denunciation of the present relief camp system was made by the speaker, who said that when the generation came to take over the reins they would be unable to do so as a result of this system.

Victor Midgley the first speaker for the evening, took exception to the speech made in Vancouver last Friday by Premier T. D. Pattullo. Declaring that the Premier was "already getting away from his pre-election slogan of 'Work and Wages,'" he declared that such a programme was impossible.

"We of the C.C.F. did not have the 'gall' to propose such a thing as appointing the party organizer to the position of assistant premier," he declared, in speaking of the appointment of Major E. F. M. Moodie as assistant to the Premier.

Regimentation, which was one of the major objections to the C.C.F. platform, could be found under the present economic system in the relief camps, the speaker said. "The unemployed have been regimented, but even under the present system we might devise some better way of using our unemployed youths and nation."

"Our concern to help our fellow human being is just as great in the present time of stress as it is when our fellows have a communicable disease," he said.

"Let us take this work, which has been promised us," he said in conclusion, "and use it co-operatively for the benefit of humanity."

PERMANENT DEBT URGED

H. Ansonbom Favors Issuing of Consols to Eliminate Sinking Fund Charges

Reopens Election Campaign With Meeting at Sir James Douglas School

Adoption of the principle of issuing consols as a means of meeting the present financial situation of the province, under which the provincial debt would always remain at the same figure and be paid for at a low rate of interest, and sinking fund charges would be eliminated, was proposed by Herbert Ansonbom, independent candidate for Victoria in next Monday's election, who yesterday evening addressed a meeting in Sir James Douglas School auditorium.

Dealing with this suggestion, Mr. Ansonbom said:

"I am satisfied the province will never be out of debt entirely, and I do not think it is necessary that it should be so, for the simple reason there are many developments of a permanent nature that will be with us for a long time, the carrying charges of which should be borne by the people of the future as well as those of the present. If that is the case then, I see no reason why the province, when it is refunding, should not adopt the principle so generally adopted in England, of issuing consols, which become a public charge and are never redeemed, and at the same time bear a low rate of interest."

To illustrate, the speaker assumed the provincial debt to be $150,000,000 and that sinking fund and interest charges were to be met on this amount. He admitted that from fifty to seventy-five millions of this amount should be refunded as it fell due, on a consols basis. This, the speaker, would assume the debt would never be less than the fixed amount of fifty or seventy-five millions on which only interest would have to be paid as no sinking fund would be required. He felt that this would be a simple security for that amount of debt.

INDEPENDENT POSITION

Mr. Ansonbom outlined briefly his position as an independent. The recent election had proved to a certain extent that the people still favored party government. The Liberals were now in power with a clear majority, he said, and were in a similar position to the Tolmie administration when it took office five years ago. The difference was, however, that when the Conservatives took office there were about eleven members of the Opposition consisted of inexperienced men who were not acquainted with the process of government, and for this reason they urged the election of Independents qualified with the necessary experience to debate issues for the Opposition. He offered his congratulations to the new government and expressed his personal wish for its success while in office.

Mr. Ansonbom declared himself as favoring a redistribution bill which would materially reduce the number of legislative members. In supporting this he promised to see that the bill was fair and equitable as far as Victoria representatives were concerned. He promised this because he was convinced that under the present "top-heavy legislature" government costs could not be reduced as they should be and as they must be if the desirable result is to be brought about.

The candidate also dealt with alleged irregularities in the voters' list, stating, if elected, to make it his duty to try and get the Elections Act amended in order that any voter who voted at an election would have his name automatically placed on the list for the next

FULL LIBERAL SLATE WANTED

Premier Pattullo Urges Victoria to Elect Four to Support Him

Eyes of Political Canada Are Focussed on Deferred Elections

"If Victoria had voted on November 2 it would undoubtedly have returned four Liberals. The eyes of Canada, and particularly political Canada, are on the six deferred elections in British Columbia and it is political Canada you want to influence," Premier Pattullo told the crowded audience at the Royal Victoria Theatre yesterday evening.

Premier Pattullo urged Victoria electors to do as he believed they would have done if the election had not been delayed and place the four Liberal candidates, who also spoke at the meeting, at the head of the poll.

The argument had been advanced, he said, that what was needed was a strong opposition. They had had an example of a strong opposition and a weak government before. What the province needed now was a strong government, he said. He pointed out that this government could be a pack of cards. There were now eleven against thirty elected to the Legislature. In Victoria and Vancouver returned six opposition members that would make seventeen in opposition. If half a dozen of the Liberal members became dissatisfied there would be no government at all. "Do you want such a government, chaos and pandemonium?" the Premier asked.

The Premier appealed for the election of a solid six Liberal ticket at the November 2 election as an indication of the unequivocal voice of British Columbia behind the present government. He submitted it was the duty of the people owed to this administration to elect what it started to do on November 2.

"What can the independents do? They can talk and that is about all," commented the Premier in concluding his appeal. He said that the Liberals to strengthen the administration and help it in its appeals to Ottawa.

W. H. KINSMAN

W. H. Kinsman opened his remarks with congratulations to Premier Pattullo on his success at the polls and subsequent selection as premier, and which was composed of a group of very able men. Victoria had been highly honored through the choice of Mr. Hart as Finance Minister, he said.

The policy laid down by the Liberal Party was not one of mere phrasing and vote catching, but one which they considered was in the best interests of the province as a whole and he was certain that all those elected to the House would work with all their energies to see that they were put into effect, he said. He appealed to Victorians to send men to the Legislature who would be in sympathy with the Premier and support him in carrying out his programme.

BYRON "BOSS" JOHNSON

"I am sure I am expressing the thoughts that had Victoria gone to the polls yesterday, the province it would have returned four Liberal candidates and I am sure the city is fair minded enough to do so on November 27 what it would have done on November 2," Johnson said in opening his speech.

He referred to the argument advanced in some quarters that Victoria should provide opposition in the Legislature. He said that the province had an example of the ineffectiveness of opposition. Members had sat in the House, had opposed measures that had been put forward but how far had they got? The Tolmie government, in spite of the opposition, proved the worst government British Columbia had ever had.

If there were not a check on the government from a vigorous opposition how could they expect it from the other side of the House; from members not conversant with the policies being put forward. Loyalty and co-operation election unless some good and definite evidence was given that he had died or moved away.

REDUCE CABINET
Mr. Ansonbom also stood for a reduction in the number of paid Cabinet ministers. The new Premier, he noted, had only lessened the number of Cabinet ministers by one, and the candidate felt a Cabinet of five was sufficiently large to govern the province.

He strongly announced his opposition to further borrowings that would increase the provincial debt, no matter what the demands might be. The budget must be balanced, he said, and the government must be sure to spend only as much as it takes in that fiscal period.

Mr. Ansonbom did not mean by this that existing loans which had not sufficient sinking funds to liquidate them could be sold out of revenue. This, obviously, was not possible, he said, and as loans fell due they must be refunded. It was in this refunding process from time to time that he felt the hope for a reduction in interest rates lay.

He referred to the widespread comment on the need for a reduction in interest rate. This, he stated, was a difficult thing to effect.

BALANCE BUDGET

"We must not forget that when we borrowed that money the lender had no say as to how the money was to be spent. He lent it in good faith, and somewhat naturally expected the contractual obligation to be carried out. If we fail in that our credit will be a thing of the past. We must take every opportunity as our loans fall due to refund them at a lesser rate of interest than they now carry. There is only one way that will enable us to do that and it is to put our financial house in order—balance the budget, eliminate further borrowings, eliminate wasteful expenditures, and inspire confidence in the financial world," said Mr. Ansonbom.

He pointed out that the cost of hospital treatment was becoming a great burden to cities and municipalities. The two main points for consideration in this respect were that the hospitals should be placed on a sound financial basis and civic taxation relieved and the insured patient should enter the hospital without a worry of any kind regarding hospital charges.

Hugh Allan was chairman.

tion in the House was essential to lead British Columbia to a higher goal. Turning to government expenditures on Vancouver Island Mr. Johnson said members elected for the island would make it their business to see the island get its proportionate share. In the last few years, he said, an examination would show that but one dollar for every four the island contributed in revenue had been expended on the island.

The policies of the Liberal Party were briefly reviewed by Mr. Johnson and a tribute to the Premier on the selection of his cabinet was paid. The speaker assured Premier Pattullo of his support if he were elected to the Legislature in his aims to make British Columbia a happy and healthful place in which to live.

J. B. CLEARHUE

J. B. Clearhue declared the inauguration of the Liberal government had not altered one iota the programme as laid down in the party's recovery policy. It had only placed this programme one step nearer to realization. And the people of Victoria would have an opportunity on November 27 to endorse the policy. The four Victoria candidates pledged themselves to see it was carried out.

"When those opposing us attack our policy, they are attacking our recovery policy, which means they are giving destructive criticism," he said, outlining in this respect the recovery moves of Great Britain, Sweden and France, which use public works as a basis.

Premier Pattullo would be leaving shortly for Ottawa to urge a similar plan in Canada and it was up to the electors to give him their whole-hearted support.

The candidate mentioned the Liberal economic council proposal, declaring the days of "laissez faire" were gone. Industry, co-operation between government and industries was essential for recovery. Mr. Clearhue described the "human side" of the Liberal platform, outlining plans for state health insurance and unemployment insurance.

"I believe in the very near future we will have a national system of unemployment insurance throughout Canada and the Liberal party stands behind that system," he declared.

Besides Mr. O'Malloran on the platform were Premier Pattullo, Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance; Hon. George W. Weir, Minister of Education; Hon. Gordon McG. Sloan, Attorney-General; Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Mines and Labor; Hon. F. M. MacPherson, Minister of Public Works; Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands; Hon. E. C. MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture; George Murray, newly elected member for Lillooet; Norman Whittaker, member-elect for Saanich; A. A. Hays, member-elect for Comox; Alex. McDonald, member-elect for the Islands; Alderman W. H. Kinsman, Byron Johnson, J. B. Clearhue, C. Whitney-Griffiths and David Ramsay.

BUILDING BODY REQUESTS AID

National Construction Council, B.C. Group, Asks Chamber's Co-operation

Co-operation of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce in the work of the National Construction Council, British Columbia committee, was sought in a letter from R. J. Lecky, secretary of the provincial organization, read at the luncheon of the directors of the local chamber in their dining-room yesterday.

The communication contained a list of organizations affiliated with the council.

The national body had, through representatives, interviewed the Prime Minister, impressing upon him the necessity for a normal amount of construction work throughout Canada, "whether directly for the federal government, the provincial governments or the municipalities."

"The National Construction Council," the letter stated, "is now making a complete survey from coast to coast of buildings which should be gone ahead with at the present time and at this writing the indication is that the final figures will run somewhere in the neighborhood of $350,000,000 to $400,000,000."

Continuing, the letter stated the council was divided into a survey committee, a research committee and a publicity committee, which required the co-operation of local organizations to obtain information for its work.

Appointment of a committee to investigate the mail service and report back to the chamber was made at the luncheon yesterday.

BACK PLAN TO IMPROVE PLANT

Chamber of Commerce Endorses Move For Betterment of Harbor By Oil Company

Directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, at their luncheon in the chamber yesterday, endorsed a move by the Imperial Oil Company to request the government to reduce its rental on the Inner Harbor foreshore, where the company plans to build a new wharf and make improvements valued at $30,000.

Approval of the scheme and endorsement of the application was made after the directors had heard an explanation of the matter by Harold Husk, president of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

Mr. Husk pointed out that at the erection of the super-service station on the bank of the harbor, the oil company had intended to put in a wharf and carry out a beautification scheme which would make its property conform to that of the Parliament Buildings. The company had expected to secure the foreshore rights at a rental of about $150 a year. When arrangements had been completed for the execution of the work, the government had set the rental at $1,500, a figure considered too high by the company. As a result the work had not been undertaken.

W. E. Strath, speaking on the matter, referred to the appreciation shown by the city to the Imperial Oil Company for its action in cleaning up the northeastern corner of the harbor. If the company intended to extend its improvements, he believed the chamber should highly approve the scheme. A move of this kind was passed.

MARRIED TO-DAY AT ESQUIMALT

Miss Rosella Mary Fagan Becomes Bride of Dolphis Pedneault

Ceremony at Queen of Peace Church; Followed by Reception

This morning at 10 o'clock at the Church of Our Lady Queen of Peace, Esquimalt, Rev. Father Anselm Wood celebrated nuptial mass, and solemnized the marriage of Rosella Mary, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Fagan of Atkins Road, and Dolphis Pedneault, third son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pedneault of Saanich. Father Wood was served at the altar by John and Elwood MacDonald, and Mr. Frederick Pitts presided at the organ. Friends of the bride had decorated the church in a charming autumn setting of chrysanthemums and greenery, and the high altar was beautifully arranged with flowers and many candles.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a white satin form-fitting gown, with short puffed sleeves and satin girdle. Her veil was arranged in cap-shape, held by orange blossoms, and she wore long gloves and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses, carnations and maidenhair fern. She was attended by Miss Lilian Kelly, who wore a frock of orange tulle, with a white bow at the waist, and a white and blue sash. The groom wore a tuxedo and a white shirt with a white bow tie. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, where a large number of guests were present. The bride and groom were accompanied by their parents and other relatives. The reception was a very pleasant one, and the bride and groom were very happy.

Following the ceremonies a reception and wedding breakfast were held in the church hall, which had been artistically decorated with yellow and mauve chrysanthemums. The bride and groom, who were assisted in receiving their many friends by Mrs. Fagan and Mrs. Pedneault, stood within a bower of greenery beneath a white wedding bell. The three-tier wedding cake, tented the prettily arranged table, and the wedding gifts to the popular young couple were displayed in another part of the hall.

News of Clubwomen

Oaklands P.T.A.—The annual meeting of the Oaklands P.T.A. was held in the hall of the Oaklands Club on Monday evening, November 6. The president, Mrs. Robbins, was in the chair. Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt Presides at Conference to Aid 400,000 U.S. Women

Washington, Nov. 21 (By Des Fumman, Associated Press Staff Writer).—In the White House east room, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday presided over a conference on how to create work projects speedily for 400,000 women.

Harry L. Hopkins, United States relief administrator, called it, and he was there to place a goal—"work for 300,000 women in the next thirty days"—to say funds were available to take women, like men, from relief rolls to employment, but that imagination thus far had been lacking.

"The one group neglected right straight along has been the unemployed women," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

W.M.S. Present Life Membership At Big Meeting

The First United Women's Missionary Society held a most successful meeting in the church yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. M. L. McLennan, who presided, welcomed the members and strangers, also the groups A, B and C of the Women's Guild. After silent prayer and a hymn, Mrs. Clarke of Gordon Head conducted a most inspiring devotional period, reading from Luke xiv.

Four life memberships to the W.M.S. were presented during the afternoon. The members of the guild gave a life membership to the W.M.S. to Miss McAllen. This was presented by Mrs. Chisholm. An anonymous donor gave a life membership for Mrs. M. Craig.

Another life membership was given to Mrs. Robert Clark by the W.M.S. These were presented by Mrs. R. W. Mayhew. Also Mrs. W. Mollard paid a loving tribute to her sister in Ontario by making her a life member of the W.M.S.

Two solos were beautifully sung by Miss Godson, Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" and "Three".

Mrs. Chisholm gave an outline of the first chapter in the study book, "Living Issues in China" and a most instructive talk was given by Mrs. W. O. Wilson on the work of the Women's Missionary Society in Canada, from its beginning in Montreal, just 110 years ago.

Mrs. Hoy read a very encouraging financial report and a nominating committee was appointed by the president.

The Bible class will give a concert in the church on Friday night.

Afternoon tea was served by the W.M.S. members, and a social hour was enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, December 18 at 2:45 o'clock.

Native Daughters.—The Native Daughters of British Columbia Post No. 3 will hold a social evening to-morrow in the New Thought Hall. Mrs. R. Cruickshank, Mrs. D. B. Nicholson, Mrs. E. Rutledge and Miss L. Smethurst have kindly offered to act as hostesses.

"PASSION PLAY"
BRIDESMAIDS

Startling Gowns Worn By Attendants on London Society Bride Recently

London, Nov. 21.—Dressed like characters out of a medieval Passion play, sixteen bridesmaids followed Miss Betty Horlick up the aisle recently at her wedding in St. Mark's Cathedral. Miss Horlick is the daughter of Lady Oppenheimer, and her bridegroom was Mr. John Symington Coats, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Coats, of Colyton, Ayrshire.

RESEMBLED ANGELS

Until the time of the wedding the design of the bridesmaids' dresses had been kept secret, though rumors had come out that they were to be something very unusual.

"Unusual" would be a mild description, for the bridesmaids looked so striking that they attracted all eyes during the service.

Their gowns were of heavy white silk, curiously draped, and over them were long, flowing white capes fastened at the throat. A bouquet of blue anemones, a homely flower which is her favorite,
was also a small pageboy, Master
Sandy Coats, the son of Mr. and Mrs.
Ian Coats. He wore a blue velvet suit of the Tudor period, with a stiff white ruff around the neck.

Southwest Cathedral is a long distance from the West End, where most fashionable weddings are held, but Miss Horlick chose it for her marriage because she likes the music there.

Considerable congestion of traffic was caused by cars leaving the cathedral after the ceremony. Buses round about London Bridge Station were held up, while a long line of traffic extending right over the bridge was a complete standstill for several minutes.

BRIDE IN WHITE VELVET

As a complete contrast Miss Horlick wore a simple gown of white ripple velvet with a long train. Her only ornament was a gold cross studded with pearls—a present from the bridegroom.
She carried a bouquet of blue anemones,
a homely flower which is her favorite.

Besides the sixteen bridesmaids

RUSSIA TO GET PUMPKIN PIE

Litvinoff "Recognizes" American Harvest Dish; to Introduce It at Home

By RODNEY BUTCHER
Washington, Nov. 21.—Pumpkin pie probably will enter the Russian diet as soon as Maxim Litvinoff gets home.
It was the one new dish in America which most tickled the commissar's palate. Generally, he found food much the same as in European capitals.

"Many pumpkins we have in Russia," he said, "but no pumpkin pie."
What impressed the plump little statesman most? The astonishing

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

PARENTS NEED RECREATION
AWAY FROM CHILDREN

The question of necessary recreation for the mother away from her children is one that must be answered individually. But it is beyond argument that children should not be taken to adult entertainments. They profit in no way by late hours, unusual food, the admiring or the critical attention of adults, or the disrupting of their good habits. There is no excuse for taking out a runabout child and keeping him up until the adult's bedtime, except that the adult wants to do it for her own pleasure.

NO BENEFIT

The point is that there is no profit in it for the children and no pleasure for the adult. A child cannot remain sweet-tempered if he is losing his night's rest, being stimulated by many noises, the spirit of excitement, and the necessity to be a credit to his mother. Under those burdens the child wits and the result is usually punishment or threats or mean-spirited words intended to keep the child subdued. One wonders how this can be called recreation.

But how shall one manage on a small income, and with several children, to get away from home occasionally? This, too, is a personal problem, but there are several ways to arrange it if one is so disposed. There may be a relative who is sufficiently kind to be willing for a small sum or a return courtesy to stay with the children in the evening. There may be young girls in high school or college who are as glad to study in one house as another, with the agreement of 25 or 50 cents for their evening's time.

SEE NEIGHBORS

Neighbors might be willing to exchange these services, one mother staying in the house with the children while her husband stays with theirs, so that the neighbor and husband may go out for an evening of recreation, unburdened by any fears for the children.

All of this can be done comfortably for all concerned if children are in the habit of going to bed as early as seven or even eight o'clock. From that time on the parents may be free for three or four hours with no fear that one of the children may wake up.

It is not selfish for parents to want to get away from their children. It is natural and understandable. But it is selfish to make the children bear the burden of another's recreation in spoiled dispositions, lost sleep, and wrecked digestions.

number of automobiles speeding about.
"More even than in France!" he exclaimed.

In non-conference moments, Litvinoff was interested principally in discussing American industry. He was surprised at the number of factories and other plants he saw from the train en route to Washington and took extensive interest in the Pennsylvania railroad programme for electrification, insisting on learning all about it.

Prospective Son-in-law: "I quite

Beaux-Arts Stage Novel Birthday Celebration at the Crystal Garden

In celebration of its second birthday, which falls this week, the Beaux-Arts held a birthday party in the Crystal Garden yesterday evening, the affair taking the form of a radio broadcast burlesque, followed by a dance.

Edward Simmons, as "Graham Might-be," was the announcer for the station "WOW," who with Miss S.
Chanderson directed the affair, which had all the spice of originality to flavor
it. A play in pantomime, "Dan Mc-Grew," with the song "There is a Tavern in Our Town" was the only one part, was given by William Findlay, Roland Horsey, Miss Jean Macdonald,
Brian Green, Logan Mayhew, Kenneth Sangster, William Boorman, Roger Humphries, Miss Aileen Culham, Miss Marjorie Benson, Miss Isabelle Benson, Miss Jean Findlay, Maudie Christopher, Jack Watson and Dalton Cameron.

Jack Watson assisted as an announcer in giving the recipe for "I'm No Angel Cake"; Miss Jean Findlay as "Lady, Be Good," gave beauty talks and advice to the love-jorn; W. Boorman, as "Andy Fash-face," gave an amusing talk;
"School Days" was presented by Miss
A. Culham and W. Findlay, and the Misses Culham and Margery and Isabel Benson sang several "Glee" numbers in approved radio style, the Benson sisters also singing "Baby Sister Blues." Jack Mercer contributed piano solos.

"The Ride of Pegasus," the finale, in which sound was the outstanding feature, was taken by W. Boorman as Jimmy Durante, Miss Jean Macdonald as Mae West, Miss Findlay as Zasu Pitts, and Miss Culham as Greta Garbo. Maudie Christopher was the sound technician.

Great credit was due to the electrician, Richard Muirhead; the stage manager, Maudie Christopher; to Jack Watson, who was in charge of the properties, and Jack Mercer, of the music.

At the close of the broadcast, Gordon Bell, president, presented Mr. Simmons with a monogrammed lighter from the members in appreciation of his work for the society.

Prior to the dance, supper was served under the direction of Miss Margaret Merrick, when a large birthday cake was cut by Mrs. F. G. Aldous, the honorary president.

A short business meeting preceded the programme, when the president announced that tickets for the masquerade ball, to be held on December 26 at the Empress Hotel, were now on sale.
The treasurer, Denis Humphries, Miss Margaret Watson and John O'Brien.

At the meeting of the Port Alberni
Women's Auxiliary to the West Coast Hospital, final arrangements were completed for the annual dance to be held next Friday evening at the Community Memorial Hall.

Some excellent pictures of cougars were secured this week by Game Warden
A. McKenzie during his trip through the district of the lakes around Great Central. He also secured an eight-pound trout.

The bridge party sponsored by the ladies of the Morgan Chapter O.E.S., held Friday evening, was a success and the proceeds will be devoted to the hospital needs. Prizes for high scores were won by Mrs. J. A. McIntyre and Fred Weaver.

Taking as her subject, "Some Contacts, Impressions and Philosophies gained during my Trip to Europe," Mrs.
J. L. Dunn was the special speaker on Sunday evening before St. Andrew's United Church Young People's Association. Miss Viola Alsworth presided.

Sponsored by the women's auxiliary to the Athletic Association a bridge party followed by a dance was held Friday evening at the Athletic Hall.
Music was supplied by Morley and Cooper's orchestra and the prizes for high scores were won by Miss M. Richardson and Tom Richardson. Consolations were secured by Mrs. M. M. Stephens and J. Grieve.

The sum of $85 was realized from the Christmas tea and sale of home cooking held Friday afternoon by the Ladies' Association of Port Alberni United Church. Mrs. Alex. McDonald was in charge of the arrangements.
Mrs. J. McKenzie and Mrs. J. E. Eversen convened the candy booth. Home cooking was supervised by Mesdames Procter, Figgess and McKay, while fancy work and novelties were sold by Mrs. A. O. Macfarlane, Mrs. H. P. Strain and Mrs. W. E. Evans. Mrs. J. B. Wood, president of the association, received the guests.

COLORED WOMAN
MAKES CLAIM

Tells New York Court She Is Widow of Clarence King, Scientist

Canadian Press
New York, Nov. 21.—A colored marriage woman, Mrs. Ada King, seventy, on the witness stand yesterday of an alleged "mauve decade" remainder of the late Clarence King, society figure of the '90's, and a noted scientist, whom she says she married in 1882.

"Soon after the turn of the century,
I met Clarence King, a man of great talent and ability, who was then a young man of about twenty-five and was residing there until King's death."

The bizarre tale was recounted before Supreme Court Justice Bernard Shientag as the aged colored woman testified in her suit against George F.
Peabody, well-known philanthropist and banker, Seth S. Terry, millionaire
New York lawyer, and John S. Meleher, wealthy chairman, as trustees for the late Clarence King, society figure of the '90's, and a noted scientist.

Gardner, Mrs. King claims, was entrusted with a secret trust fund of $80,000 by Clarence King for her and their children, the principal of which she allegedly never received.

Attorneys for the defence contend King died insolvent and that proceeds of the art sale were used to satisfy a mortgage and set up a $50,000 trust fund for his widowed mother.

GRAND OLD WOMAN
OF LETTERS AT 75

A masquerade old time dance was held in the Royal Oak Hall Friday under the auspices of the Women's Institute. About 200 attended in fancy dress. Judges for the evening were Mrs. Herbert Anson, Mrs. Service of Lake Hill, and Miss Hazel Lamont. The prize for the best lady's costume was awarded to Mrs. Muriel Allen, as a Spanish lady, A. C. McVicker in an Indian costume won the best gentleman's prize.

"Other prize winners were: best fashioned lady, Mrs. Anna Paulin; best old-fashioned gentleman, Mr.
McVicker."

In 1909 Selma Lagerlof won the Nobel prize for literature. Her active and alert, Sweden's grand old woman of letters is shown in her latest picture as she neared her seventy-fifth birthday on November 20.

Why Children's Colds are Best Treated externally

A child's stomach is delicate, and constant dosing often leads to a digestive upset.
Besides, "dosing" is indirect treatment for a cold. Too often, it does actual harm—spoils appetite and so lowers body strength when it is most needed to resist disease.

For these reasons, mothers the world over prefer Vicks VapoRub, the modern treatment for children's colds.
VapoRub is used externally —you just rub it on! It can be used freely—and as often as needed—even on the youngest child. Absolutely safe—and doubly effective!

FAMOUS POULTICE-VAPOR ACTION

Applied over throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts through the skin, "drawing out" tightness and soreness. At the same time, its soothing medicated vapors are released by body-heat and inhaled direct to irritated air-passages. The child relaxes—sleeps soundly—and by morning, almost always, the worst of the cold is over.

Nothing else gives this unique poultice-vapor action of VapoRub.
Nothing else gives the same sure relief. Two generations of mothers have tested and proved Vicks VapoRub as best for children's colds. Today, it is used in over 70 countries—is a family standby in more than 26,000,000 homes.

FOR DEEP-SEATED COLDS

Stronger Stimulative Action—When there is much tightness or soreness, reddens the skin with hot, wet towels before applying VapoRub—then spread it on thick.

Stronger Vapor Action—When the air-passages are badly clogged—or there is much irritation or coughing—also melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors for several minutes.

Man With a Thousand Masks

By Augustus Muir

The barrister stroked his chin thoughtfully.

"Supposing you put the matter into the hands of this man—this client of yours. I presume he'll expect payment for his trouble?"

The rather sordid question of money will have to be considered," replied Lewin. "But let me say this, My client will be easily satisfied. It happens that he's not in a position to dictate his own terms for any favor he may do me. But the actual recovery of the documents—that is another matter. It may require a certain sum of money." Carlo Lewin paused for a second. "Possibly a rather large sum, Sir Richard."

"Ah! You think the documents may be for sale?"

"That I imagine, will be the position," said Lewin thoughtfully.

"And a distinctly uncomfortable position. One with a slight suspicion of blackmail about it, Mr. Lewin?"

At the uppy word Carlo Lewin winced.

"But surely, Sir Richard, it is not unusual to offer a reward for a stolen article?"

"It depends on the article," returned Templeton grimly.

The faint shadow of a smile had passed across Lewin's sallow face. "Of course, if the documents are of such a nature that they might be used to blackmail," he shrugged his shoulders. "But I know nothing about that. You yourself will be able to judge. It depends how valuable the documents may be—to some particular person."

Sir Richard Templeton's face had gone a trifle paler.

CHAPTER XXXI

"How soon do you think you can recover those papers, Mr. Lewin?"

"No time will be lost," Lewin promised. "If you ask me to go ahead, I shall set the machinery in motion to-day. I make only condition, Sir Richard."

"Yes?"

"My name must not be mentioned. I am on very good terms with the police, and I want nothing to disturb these pleasant relations. My methods of recovering the documents for you might not be considered—well, quite orthodox at Scotland Yard." He rose to his feet. "But I think I can trust you, Sir Richard, to look after my interests in that quarter."

Templeton smoothed back his greying hair, and his face looked haggard and anxious.

"Give me an hour to think this over, Mr. Lewin. Where can I find you?"

"My office address is on my card. I have some rather urgent matters to attend to, so I expect to be there until nearly midnight."

"I shall telephone you in about an hour's time," said Sir Richard Templeton.

Mr. Lewin did not go straight to his office. After crossing Tower Bridge he turned left and made his way through the dark, narrow streets by the river. He eventually arrived at the side door of the Heart's Desire, where his interview with Tom Young was brief, and shortly after 11 o'clock he reached his office in Rotherhithe.

The entrance was between two dismal-looking shops with drawn blinds. Carlo Lewin went quickly up the stairs past the doors of other offices which had been dark and deserted for several hours. Lewin occupied the top floor, and, switching on the light in the passage, he entered his own room, a low-ceilinged place, dusty, and ill-lit.

He sat down at the huge roll-top desk which dwarfed his thin, black-coated figure, and began to write in a small, spidery hand. Every now and then he glanced at the clock on the wall, and as the minutes passed a look of concern crept into his pale eyes. At last he got to his feet and began to pace restlessly up and down the room.

When at last the telephone rang he hurried to his desk and lifted the receiver. It was Sir Richard Templeton who spoke, and Lewin was eager and hurried, and Lewin was not slow to note the fact.

"Will you please go ahead, Mr. Lewin. I want those documents at the earliest possible moment."

A glint of triumph flashed in Carlo Lewin's eyes.

"And the financial side of the business, Sir Richard?" he queried.

"Let me know the sum required," said Sir Richard Templeton. "I am required to pay anything in reason. Next morning as soon as Elizabeth Marlowe had arrived at Sir Richard Templeton's suite in the Marquise Hotel, the barrister summoned her to his own room."

"I particularly want to be away from London this week-end," he told her. "For a special reason I've decided to go down to the country for several days, and I'd like you to come, too. Can you arrange this?"

"I'll be delighted, Sir Richard," she said readily, then drew back. "But your mother will come, Elizabeth. You'll have your own quarters there, and two of you can have your meals together."

"May I talk this over with mother?" asked Elizabeth.

"Certainly. See her at lunch-time and let me know this afternoon. I want to make my arrangements as soon as possible." He paused, fumbled with some papers on his desk. "I hope your mother will come, Elizabeth. The change should do her good. What do you think of the suggestion?"

Elizabeth did not reply. Too well she knew her mother's feelings toward Sir Richard Templeton.

"Of course, she may refuse," he added, discerning the girl's thoughts. "She may even object to your coming at all. If she does, it will make things very difficult for me, and I hope you'll put this plainly to her. Now for work!"

He motioned her to a chair, and, picking up a sheet of notes, began to dictate from the chair, and she was leaving the room he called her back.

"There's one thing I'd like to warn you about, Elizabeth. If that young man Gilmore finds some pretext for getting into conversation with you again, I'd be glad if you'll tell him nothing about our arrangements. Bystanders should not be encouraged."

Elizabeth had cause to remember her employer's words as she arrived back at the Marquise after lunch. Alan Gilmore caught sight of her crossing the foyer, and leaning at the bureau that Sir Richard Templeton was not in the hotel, he hurried upstairs and made his way to her room.

"Good-bye to you on one of the world's workers," he said, with a laugh, subsiding in an armchair. "The clock's clear, so I've taken the chance."

His manner was easy and familiar. He did not want her to know that he had sat up half the night turning over in his mind certain matters intimately connected with her case. As he might find a plausible explanation for her actions, several facts stood out too sharply to be ignored. There had been several instances when her conduct had puzzled him—such as her distress at the reported capture of Lord John—but he had kept brushing them aside as mere trifles. And then, without warning, he had stumbled last evening across a piece of information which, far from explaining away what had gone before, made some of her actions more mysterious than ever.

What reason had Elizabeth written to the man Brown, who was apparently a friend of Mr. Tom Young? Whether or not the police were right in suspecting the proprietor of the Heart's Desire to be a receiver of stolen goods, it was practically certain that he was an associate of Lord John. That was the twist of the knife! Why should Elizabeth be secretly in touch with a man who seemed friendly with the most daring and ruthless set of criminals that had harassed London for years?

As Alan chatted with her this afternoon, watching her eyes brighten, noting the play of light and shadow round the lovely curves of her face, he found it difficult to believe that Mr. Brown and Mr. Tom Young were not secret agents of his own brain, or that the Heart's Desire had any existence apart from the wavering images of some ugly dream.

"Elizabeth!" he began. He had fallen so simply into using her name, "Elizabeth. I'd like you to explain one or two things."

In spite of his efforts to appear easy and natural, she noted the change in his voice, and he saw her eyes harden.

"It's about that letter you gave me a couple of days ago—the letter I delivered at the Heart's Desire."

Before he had finished the sentence he saw the quick clench of her hands and the stiffening of her body.

"You've told nobody about this?" she asked urgently.

He shook his head.

"Of course not, I've said before I wouldn't. But I wish you'd explain a little. Can't you understand, Elizabeth? It's all so puzzling."

"Fuzzling! What is?" she asked a trifle coldly.

It was difficult to reply without being brutally frank. Did she already suspect that Scotland Yard had doubts about her? If not, was it wise to tell her about one thing that would mean his breaking faith with Trapp and more than that, the sheer anxiety of it might send her headlong into a storm of action that would involve her even more deeply than she appeared to be at present. Better to let matters stand.

"Fuzzling?" he repeated. "Well, there's that man Brown you wrote to. He was well-dressed, educated, and so forth. What's he doing living at a low place like the Heart's Desire? It struck me as queer. I'm not inquisitive; don't think that, it's for your own sake I'm asking."

Elizabeth was sitting upright in her chair beside the typewriter.

"What do you wish to know about Mr. Brown? Her voice struck a challenging note that left Alan distinctly uncomfortable.

"Why is he living at the Heart's Desire?" he repeated. "It almost looks as if—"

"Yes?" she asked sharply.

"As if he were in hiding there?" Alan had hesitated before making the remark, and in the end blurted it out as though he were almost ashamed to make the unpleasant suggestion. But the effect on Elizabeth was instantaneous.

She rose to her feet, and when she spoke her voice was strained.

Uncle Wiggly and the Warm Wind

(By HOWARD R. GARIS.)

Uncle Wiggly could not forget how he had been fooled into breaking off icicles, made brown by muddy water, for sticks of wood at the carrot roasts.

"I certainly made a mistake," said the rabbit gentleman telling Mr. Twit, his last pig friend, about it. "Boy, O boy! You should have heard the brown fellows when I put them on the fire thinking they were sticks of wood!"

"You ought to know ice when you see it!" grunted the pig. "You have been in the ice cave of Mr. Whitehead, the Polar Bear, often enough."

"So I have," said Mr. Longears. "But these were new icicles, the first of the season. They were made by that little North Pole elf, Jack Frost."

"Jack seems to have been around last night," grunted Mr. Twit. "It is very cold this morning."

"Yes, it is," agreed Mr. Longears. "And I wish it would get warmer. It's too cold so early in the season. When I see Jack I'll ask him not to make so much snow and ice and icicles. I'll tell him to wait until Thanksgiving."

"Yes, do," grunted the pig as he waddled back home to get some sour milk pudding his wife had baked for him.

Uncle Wiggly had his wish about warm weather much sooner than he expected. Hardly had he left Mr. Twit when the wind began to blow from the south, and Mr. Longears had to unbutton his fur coat.

"This certainly is a nice, warm wind," remarked Mr. Longears as he stepped along looking for an adventure. "It is so warm that it is melting the ice in the duck pond and melting the icicles hanging down from the edge of the roof of my hollow stump bungalow. There can be no snow for sliding down hill if the warm wind keeps blowing."

But the South wind kept on blowing just the same and many of the animals in a woodland, who did not care for winter, were very glad. Some of them had begun to burrow deep down into the earth to hide away from the cold, though perhaps summer was coming back and they scrambled up to sit in the sunshine.

That afternoon, as Uncle Wiggly was sitting on his log stump without a hat, because it was so warm, he saw coming along the road a little man who did not seem very happy.

"What's the matter?" exclaimed the rabbit. "What's the matter?" he asked, for the little man was bedraggled and bedraggled.

"It's the warm wind," Jack answered. "I can't stand warm weather, you know. When I started away from the North Pole I was sure there would be no more warm weather down here. But the South wind fooled me."

"Just as I was fooled with the brown icicles that looked like sticks of wood!" laughed Mr. Longears. "But I rather like this warm wind, Jack."

"I don't!" sighed the North Pole elf. "I can't stand it. Haven't you some cold place where I can stay, Uncle Wiggly, until this warm wind stops blowing? If I stay out in it I'll melt."

"My bungalow would not be cold enough for you, Jack," said Mr. Longears. "But I'll tell you a fine place to stay."

"Where?" asked Jack, eagerly, trying to fan himself with a little piece of ice he had picked up at the duck pond. But the ice was melting fast. "Where can I hide until this warm wind stops blowing?"

"In the ice cave of Mr. Whitehead, the Polar Bear," answered Uncle Wiggly. "I'll take you there, Jack. Mr. Whitehead will let you hide with him and sit on a cake of ice until the weather turns cold again."

"Oh, joy!" cried Jack Frost. "Take me there quickly, please!"

Uncle Wiggly led the way up the hill to where Mr. Whitehead had a deep, dark cave—where the cakes of ice never melted. Jack Frost was invited. "Come in, Jack! Come in!" he invited Mr. Frost. "I'll keep you cool enough. And you, too, Uncle Wiggly!"

"Thank you, Jack. I like to be so warm," said the rabbit. "But there can't be Jack Frost." As soon as Jack was in the bear's cold cave the little man was all right again. He jumped around and sang and blew out his cold breath. Uncle Wiggly hopped down the hill to go home. On the way the Wolf tried to chase him. But from the top of the hill Mr. Whitehead and Jack Frost threw chunks of ice at the Bad Chap and drove him away. So Uncle Wiggly reached home safely. Next day it was cold. And if it the steam radiator will whisper a story in the ear of Mr. I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly and Pumpkin Pete.

JAPAN TAKING MORE BUTTER

Orient Market Could Absorb Surplus Canadian Stocks at Competitive Rate

With indications of a heavy exportable surplus of Canadian butter this winter, it is considered possible that much larger quantities of butter could be marketed in Japan if Canadian quotations were competitive with or lower than those of New Zealand and Australian exporters, it is reported by the department of trade and commerce, quoting advice from A. K. Doull, assistant trade commissioner at Tokio.

So far this year very small quantities of Canadian butter have been shipped to Japan as compared with quotations from Australia, and imports from New Zealand have been considerably larger than those from Canada.

Last year Canada was the largest butter exporter to Japan from the value standpoint, although New Zealand, due to its more favorable exchange, shipped larger quantities.

Butter imports to Japan for the first eight months of 1933 amounted to 205,422 pounds as compared with 102,974 pounds in the corresponding period last year, an increase of approximately 100 per cent. Imports for the whole of last year amounted to only 153,807 pounds as compared with 251,322 pounds in 1931 and 598,992 pounds in 1930. It would thus appear that imports of butter this year will exceed those of 1932 and 1931, but will not come up to the 1930 figure.

Imports of butter from Canada last year amounted to 69,300 pounds as against imports from New Zealand amounting to 19,012 pounds and from Australia to 28,492 pounds. Butter shipments from the United States last year totaled only 5,476 pounds.

University of B.C., Point Grey, Nov. 21.—For several hundred years, sea serpents have been reported to have an open mind on the subject, but while I realize it is rather hard to ask that the creature be shown, I would like to see a "photograph," said Professor M. Y. Williams, U.B.C. paleontologist and stratigraphist, when a student asked him about Victoria's Cadborosaurus at the close of a recent Royal Astronomical Society meeting.

"We are seriously contemplating a scheme of scholarships by which graduates of Canadian universities who are interested in art may be selected, sent to the Canadian National Art Gallery for seven years, where they will have the best of many interests. Those who are selected are then enrolled at the University of London for a year's post graduate work," declared Professor W. G. Constable, director of the Courtauld Institute of Art, London, Eng., and former assistant director of the National Art Gallery of England, in an address to members of the U.B.C. Art Club.

Students had an opportunity to hear two addresses at the university by Dr. Zimmern, professor of international relations at Oxford University. The first one took up the defence of democracy at the expense of dictatorship. In the second, he spoke of international policy. His remarks stirred up much discussion and, needless to say, his exposition of European power politics and his suggestions for "improving" the world split the more intellectual members of the student body into opposing camps. A number thought the Oxford doctrine for clearer thinking among the masses was true in its way, but old and irrelevant stuff in relation to the chancelleries of Europe.

"Students at the University of British Columbia are not wasting their time; there is no body in the province working harder for clearer thinking minds," said Dean R. W. Brock, head of the faculty of applied science, in an address before the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy in the Hotel Vancouver last week. "I have often had to tell them they're working too hard and not taking enough time off for exercise."

Two debaters from Stanford University defeated the U.B.C. team of Ernest Brown and John Conway in a debate in the Hotel Vancouver Saturday evening. The subject was "Resolved: The United States is responsible for the world depression." and the United States boys took the affirmative.

What they are saying, as quoted in The Ubyssey, student publication, is Dr. Sage (in History 10)—"Edward the Confessor must not be confused with Edward the Careless—who came a thousand years later."

Professor Drummond: "As a statistician, I believe in cures." Dr. Sage: "Old maid's children are generally the most carefully brought up."

"THE MIKADO"

POPULAR YET

One of Gilbert and Sullivan's Finest Operas to Be Presented Here

Much interest has been aroused by the announcement that the Victoria Operatic Society would present, as its first offering of the present season, Gilbert and Sullivan's delightful comic opera
"The Mikado". Since the Society was formed three years ago, its patrons have been clamoring for one of these famous Savoyard productions. "The Mikado" will be presented at the Royal Victoria Theatre on the evenings of Friday and Saturday, December 1 and 2.

"The Mikado" is an opera which never grows stale.

Victorians are shown their appreciation of the forthcoming local production by reserving hundreds of seats by mail.

There are many delightful musical gems in opera. The most popular are probably "The Willow", "Three Little Maids from School", "The Pirates of Penzance", "The Moon and the Sun", and "The Gondoliers", which are sung as solos,
and "Gentlemen of Japan", "Mya Sama" and "With Joyous Shouts" which are the most outstanding of the chorus numbers.

WANTS THEM IN FULL

musicians or the party at the piano have their hands ready the instant the last word is out of the last speaker's mouth, to start up God Save the King.
It is because they are afraid of the voter who wants to ask a question!
Surely not. And I'm sure the rest of the audience, who are not musicians, asked and answered, and there would not be rushed into the National Anthem in such an unbecomingly fashion as EVELYN M. BROWN.

"VICIOUS AND MISLEADING"
To the Editor:—The report of my address to the electors at the Chamber of Commerce on Saturday evening last, appearing in to-night's issue of your paper states that I said:

"Business franchises were among the concessions which had been granted in the province against the wishes of the people."
Further, that I stated: "Mr. Moodie moved into the parliament buildings to assist during the congestion following the transfer of the new administration."

Since your report states exactly the opposite of what I did say it might be well to ask: Why do you not send a reporter to these gatherings to keep himself up to date on the subject?
make a poor attempt at re-hashing the news of the morning paper?

The morning paper carried a verbi-um report of what I said in the above report. The Colonial report which was evidently taken as a basis was the exact opposite of what you stated.

Why don't you tell the truth? Why do you print falsehoods? Do you not know that many of your readers listen in over the radio and realize how you are trying to fool them? Do you think you have any right, now you are the organ of a victorious party to place words in a speaker's mouth which he never said?

Do you so badly want to win the election in Victoria for your friends that you will deliberately falsify the speech of one of your own fellow-citizens and subscribers, in order to win?

I trust you will at least be fair enough to print this letter in order that some of your readers may not be deliberately misled by such vicious and misleading journalism.

CLEM DAVIES,
2211 Douglas Street, November 20.

THE "RIGHT" TO AN INCOME AND WORK

To the Editor:—The right of every willing worker to a decent income and useful work cannot be too clearly, too constantly or too vigorously insisted on. It is the cornerstone of social justice. The right, at all times, to his fair share of the total of income and work that are available is the natural birthright of every industrious citizen.
Without it he is debased below the status of a savage. What other living creature upon earth, besides man, in the midst of abundance? What chattislays is denied the supplies he needs him "fit" while plenty surrounds him on every hand? Neither self-respect nor civilization is possible so long as this obvious and elementary right is withheld.

And what is it, that stands in the way of this most just and most reasonable claim? Money; the monopoly of the private money-manufacturer.
"Where is the money to come from?"
is the cry that greets every demand of equity and righteousness. Our distressed, unemployed, unskilled privately-manufactured money system must give place to national money, whose first purpose shall be to ensure to every willing worker the comfortable, honorable and secure livelihood which science and invention have made possible for ever; one of us.

J. G. WILSON,
Montreal, P.O. Box 3174.

WANT RELIEF

To the Editor:—The unemployed everywhere throughout the province are anxiously looking to the new ministry to relieve their pressing distresses. Unless a more radical and relief of a permanent nature cannot be effected, the unemployed, who are in a state of dire straits, will not meet until March.

either Esquimalt or Victoria was run on as gentlemanly system as the service men's canteen, there would be a lot of squawking. A pauper class of beer would not influence these service men, election have surely given the service men a black eye. Think again. They are always wrote to help in any affair, charity or otherwise, and are just as gentlemanly and clean-lived as a

ARGUMENT ON INSULIN DUTY

London, Nov. 21.—Some of the most learned professors in England have been engaged on the definition of Insulin for the last few days before a Board of Trade tribunal. That body is inquiring into the desirability of an increase in the import duty on insulin for the treatment of diabetes—discovery of Dr. Frederick G. Banting of Toronto.

If the tribunal decides Insulin is a fine chemical coming in the dutiable line under the Safeguarding of Industries Act, the present ad valorem duty of 10 per cent may be increased to a duty of 5 to 15 per cent.
Application for the inclusion and consequent increase was made by the Association of British Chemical Manufacturers. Prof. Robert Robinson declared Insulin was a fine chemical entity, while Prof. Edward Franklin Armstrong to-day classed it as a protein and not a chemical entity.

The tribunal consists of Stephen Henth Collins, Prof. Samuel Smiles and Prof. F. G. Donnan. It has concluded taking evidence and will probably take some time to reach a decision.

NATIONAL ANTHEM CASE IN COURT

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Because the National Anthem was not played at a meeting in Massey Hall, November 11, Jack Cowan, secretary of the Toronto Anti-war Conference Committee, was called into police court yesterday.

Cowan is charged under a statute which reads: "In every theatre in Ontario the National Anthem shall be played at the conclusion of each performance."

The charge arose from a meeting addressed by Tom Mann, English Laborite, where the audience, after being asked to sing God Save the King, broke instead into the strains of the "Internationale."

When Cowan appeared yesterday the magistrate was told that the case was adjourned until November 28. No bail was demanded.

The charge is that the Theatre Act was violated.

the underlung turkey, offered by Pacific Coast growers for the Christmas table. And it's a premium bird, though perhaps somewhat tough on the boys and girls because the drumsticks are shorter. There is more of the good white meat around the wishbone, however.

In San Bernardino County, Cal., where the feathered crop for the market totals 23,568, about 1,000 more than 1932, the full-breasted variety is popular. Growers report it is bringing from four to six cents a pound more than the long drumsticks.

From Oregon, also, where production has dropped off from 15 to 20 per cent compared with last year, gobblers and hens are reported sagging closer to the ground.

Musical Play Took Broadway By Storm

It is because it feels that Victoria audiences should have an opportunity of enjoying the musical play that has swept Broadway by storm, broken box-office records throughout the west and middle west and reached its 1,026th performance, that the Schubert Club has chosen "The Green Pastures" for its initial programme this season.

To all those who have read Marc Connelly's play in book form, the Schubert Club's announcement has been received with enthusiasm. They are looking forward to hearing such spirituals as "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen," "Oh, Peck-a-Go Home," "Deep River," and "Goin' Home," to mention only a few of the musical numbers. Marc Connelly has combined the Negro's simple faith with his humor and pathos, and the rhythmic spirituals of the south as no playwright has succeeded in doing before.

"The Green Pastures" will be presented for one night only, November 28, at the Shrine Auditorium, by the Schubert Club, assisted by Dr. H. J.
Johns, soloist, and Berion W. James, director of Seattle's Repertory Theatre, as dramatic reader. Tickets may be obtained from members of the club, Fletcher's, or the Willis Piano Co.

DOMINION THEATRE
No more uniforms—military or civilian—for Maurice Chevalier.

The star of Paramount's "The Way to Love," showing at the Dominion Theatre, has announced that he is through with brass buttons and evening clothes. In "The Way to Love," in which he appears with Ann Dvorak and Edward Everett Horton, he is cast as a typical Parisian. But he is the first picture, since his debut in "In-nocents of Paris" in which he has not donned regalia. He was so pleased that he has taken a firm stand against future "regal rage."

CAPITOL THEATRE
With all the traditional fireworks of the old Wild West shows, Mae West, screenom's current sensation, came here in her picture, "I'm No Angel," now at the Capitol Theatre.

Mae set herself a difficult task bettering her first picture, "She Done Him Wrong," which lifted her to the top of the cinema ladder and made her a world idol, but she has succeeded!

From every standpoint—story, star performance, songs, wisecracks, production value—"I'm No Angel" excels Mae

Capitol Theatre Saturday. Miss Barrie

by London Films last year. It is the young Jane who becomes the third wife of Henry on the day that Anne Boleyn is beheaded by his command.

COLUMBIA THEATRE
Paul Lukas, the movie star, receives hundreds of girlishly-scratched letters every week that tell him—in no unmistakable terms—just how fascinating his Hungarian speaking-act is. But Paul Lukas is almost violent in his effort to extract the Hungarian from his English speech. Every member of his household is forbidden to speak to him in his native tongue, and he tells hours every day to meet the demands of correct English articulation.

His latest film, which is the pteriza-tion of Erich Phillipi and William Kubrick's narrative of a weird goblin chamber abounding in life-destroying powers, is being shown at the Columbia Theatre.

ASK MAYOR FOR VIEWS

Ratepayers' Association Considers Position For Civic Poll Opinion Expressed That Mayor Leeming Should Not Be Opposed

The executive of the Victoria Ratepayers' Association, at a luncheon meeting to-day, named a committee to wait upon Mayor Leeming shortly to get a statement of his policies for the coming year, if he is returned to office.

At the same time a committee was struck to consider the question of running candidates for aldermanic honors.

The general opinion of the executive, although not expressed in resolution form, was that the association should not oppose Mayor Leeming at the December polls.

"Mayor Leeming has done what none of his predecessors have done," declared Frank Higgins, K.C., the president. He has come out flatly and told the people the truth about the city's financial position and he has outlined what steps he proposes to meet this condition.

Other members of the executive expressed the view that Mr. Leeming had turned out a better mayor than they expected, although declaring they were certain details of the civic administration with which they were not satisfied.

The general feeling was voiced that the association had partly performed its objective in turning the attention of men in all kinds of public offices directly on the matter of taxation. At one time public bodies would not listen to the complaints of the taxpayers but now they were talking about them consistently.

The matter of naming candidates for the civic poll was considered in the light of the advisability of the best course open to educate the public to the needs of the ratepayers as far as lower taxation is concerned. On two previous occasions the association had run candidates for the express purpose of propaganda and while the candidates had not been elected the results on the educational side were gratifying, it was stated.

After the delegation has met the mayor and the nomination committee finishes its deliberations the executive will reconvene to make final decisions.

PAPER MILLS TO CO-OPERATE

Getting Together on Commonsense Basis to Make Headway, Says H. Crabtree

Coast Mills Look to Future With Growing Prospects, Says Visitor

"The news mills are trying to get together on a commonsense basis for they realize that it is necessary to have a solid foundation under their feet if they are to make any headway," said Harold Crabtree, president of the Howard Smith Paper Mills Ltd., Montreal, in discussing the problems faced by the pulp and paper manufacturing industry in Canada.

"The trouble has been over-expansion by the paper mills," continued Mr. Crabtree. "There has been an over-production of tonnage, but the mill interests are beginning to realize that if a fair price can be established, all is not yet lost. There is now some semblance of co-operation towards this end."

Mr. Crabtree is visiting Victoria after inspecting the pulp and paper mills on the Pacific Coast, particularly in the state of Washington. Among the big plants he visited were the Puget Sound mills.

"The coast mills," he observed, "appear to be fairly busy and look to the future with growing prospects." Apart from the office he holds as president of the Howard Smith Paper Mills Ltd., Mr. Crabtree is president of the Canada Paper Company Ltd., president of the Alliance Paper Mills Ltd., Merritt, Ont.; director of the Adams Paper Company, Well River, Vermont; director of the Canadian Paper Company, vice-president of the Woods Manufacturing Company, and president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

His career in the paper industry started as a junior in the mill office of Alex. McArthur and Co. Ltd., Joliette, Que., in 1889. After being secretary and vice-president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, Mr. Crabtree in 1917 became secretary-treasurer of the Howard Smith Paper Mills Ltd. and subsequently held the offices of managing-director and was vice-president until 1931 when he was appointed president of the company.

Saved the Cents But Fined $5

A woman rushing to a Fort Street grocery store to secure a "potato special," parked her car in the only spot available within a block, she explained in the City Police Court this morning.

It was not until she had been successful in the "battle for cents" and secured the special that she discovered there was a ticket on her car which had been parked next to a hydrant.

"But you see I had to hurry to get the special," she told the magistrate, "but you see I had to hurry to get the special."

A fine of $5 was ordered.

SCHOLARSHIP IS PRESENTED

William M. Allan Given Kiwanis Award at Club Luncheon To-day

Students Speak at Gathering; Presentation Made By Dr. S. J. Willis

William M. Allan, a scholarly young man, whose academic and personality place him in the highest regard of his professors and fellow students, to-day told members of the Kiwanis Club at the Empress Hotel of his altruistic desire to repay his debt to their organization through public service.

He expressed his appreciation for the scholarship presented annually to the most deserving scholar in Victoria College. The presentation was made at the club's weekly luncheon by Dr. S. J. Willis, Deputy Minister of Education.

Before presenting the bursary Dr. Willis spoke of the genuine pleasure he experienced in awarding the laurel to so deserving a student. He referred to the continued success of former students of the Kiwanis scholarship and sketched their activities since leaving Victoria College.

Briefly he touched upon the high character of the college dealing with its humble beginnings in 1921 and paying a tribute to the work of Dr. E. B. Paul in securing the centre of learning for Victoria.

Enumerating the scholars who had won the Kiwanis award in previous years he elaborated on the success of academic and business men.

He expressed the sincere belief the present recipient would prove no exception to his predecessors.

VOICES THANKS

Replying, Mr. Allan voiced his great appreciation of the honor and material assistance bestowed upon him by the club. He told the members of his school life, pointing to the limitations he had been under against the student in Indian reserve schools before he graduated to High School and there enjoyed the less circumscribed advantages of the institution on Salt Spring Island.

He had won his first scholarship in his first year in Victoria College by carrying papers while on Salt Spring Island, he said, and had been greatly assisted in his second year by the club's bursary.

While deeply appreciating the gift personally, Mr. Allan told the gathering he considered it also in the light of a Kiwanis investment in society. In the future he hoped to justify the investment and was looking forward to doing some work in the Kiwanis service field.

After completing his second year of school, he intended to go to Normal School and to continue his academic training at the University of British Columbia when circumstances were favorable, he added.

Robert Ferguson, president of the Students' Union, voiced further praise of the recipient of the Kiwanis award this year, assuring the clubmen that in the opinion of the student body a better selection could have been made.

He paid tribute to the work of the professors and declared the students

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. IN CITY

Board of Directors Told of All-round Increase in Attendance

Figures given at the board meeting in the Y.M.C.A. building Saturday evening show that the association's local activities have made considerable advances in attendance in the course of the year. The physical department reports 161 sessions of twenty-nine organizations for the month of October with a total attendance of 2,568. The figures for the same month last year were 131 sessions and 2,244 present.

The boys' section, with number of club sessions split by half, from thirty to fifteen only shows a drop from 235 to 172 in membership, while the boys' swim and gym section this year had 1,387 present in October at service sessions as against 1,107 at fifty-five sessions last year.

Reports were read by the various organizations, all showing considerable development in the course of the month. The physical department drew attention to the boxing classes under Stanley James, the Badminton Club led by Warren Martin, and the formation of four new swimming groups for boys and girls.

The educational committee's report pointed out the success of the tag day October 7 and the tenth H-Y conference held in Victoria under their auspices in the course of the month. The educational committee's report stressed the success of the public speakers' class inaugurated in the month, and the speakers' club, amalgamation of two former organizations, and now affiliated with the "cooperators' international."

In the course of the meeting it was announced that the Y.M.C.A. will make its annual appeal for money for the boys' department during the first week of March next year. The campaign will be directed by E. Otter, of the Y.M.C.A. national council, who headed the successful drive at the beginning of this year.

A. Sturrock presented his resignation to the board, asking to be relieved of his duties as chairman of the house committee through press of business. The directors accepted his resignation, expressing their regret, and thanking him for his services. James Bennett was appointed to the position.

The financial report was submitted by President H. B. Witter in the absence of Treasurer J. O. Cameron. He commented on the excellent financial standing of the association.

Appreciation was expressed by the board of the services of Miss George Rupert, secretary of the senior swimming club, in connection with the women's and girls' swimming classes.

MARKET NOTES

McIntosh Red apples this morning took a drop of thirty-five cents per box of forty pounds on the wholesale market. The retailers report no change in price, the price remaining at four pounds for twenty-five cents.

Supplies of fancy fruit for Christmas are plentiful at present, these include a big stock of Bynrna figs and a fair quantity of Japanese chestnuts.

Wholesalers are ready to receive the first cargo of Japanese oranges of the year, which will arrive to-morrow on the liner Empress of Canada.

This morning the Pacific Ranger docked with a load of lemons, oranges and grapefruit, which will be on the market shortly and will add to the supplies of fruit.

There were no room for slakers at the Victoria institution, he said.

LIVES INVITATION

In closing he invited the clubmen to visit the college on the days it was opened to the public.

Personal commendation of Mr. Allan was voiced by Raymond Jones, who dealt in some detail with the scholastic achievements and good character of the honored student.

Prof. E. H. Elliott, principal of the college, expressed the staff's appreciation for the club's continued interest in the institution.

During the scholarship, he stated that when a group of business men such as the club represented, went into their pockets to aid a student following the course prescribed at college, he believed the donation a gesture of faith in the work Victoria College was trying to accomplish.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

B.C. Football In Worse Tangle Than Ever.

Further Talk of Securing Separate Charter For Island.

Jack Dempsey Criticized For Association With Wrestlers.

EFFORTS of the British Columbia Football Association, the Coast League and the Dominion Football Association to lead the sport out of the darkness in British Columbia have again fallen by the wayside. After it appeared matters had been straightened away for the commission of three composed of Charlie Jones Leith and Jack Russell, former presidents of the B.C.F.A., to take over the governing of soccer in this province the Vancouver and District League stepped into the picture at Vancouver on Saturday night and voted down the commission plan. Matters now stand just where they were before although the tangle is even worse as the entire B.C.F.A. board with the exception of Secretary Bob Forgie has stepped out of the picture.

Just why Leith, Jones and Russell, after their appointment had been ratified by the B.C.F.A., should ask the mainland clubs to ratify their taking over control is hard to understand. If they had stepped in and taken the reins it is quite possible everything would have gone off as scheduled. The reason for the change of heart by the Vancouver and District League clubs seems to centre around the allotment of grounds in Vancouver. Since the Coast League and Senior League have been kicking one another in Vancouver the V. and D. has been making money. No doubt the clubs in the latter league were afraid that should the commission take over and the various leagues become reconciled their handsome gates would vanish. Just what will take place now it is hard to forecast but it is certain that something will have to be done and done quickly to straighten out football in British Columbia or the game is going to suffer a setback that will take years for it to recover from.

While the mainlanders are putting on their little squabble the eight clubs in the Victoria Coast League are getting along very nicely. Their only worry is whether or not the intercity matches with the Vancouver clubs will be continued. Nothing can be done at present with matters in such a turmoil on the mainland. And again there is talk of taking action to secure a separate charter from the Dominion Football Association for Vancouver Island. Under this plan the island clubs would be grouped with nothing to do with the mainland. This system would prove of benefit to Victoria clubs and it might be possible to organize a four-team league in Victoria and a four-team league on the upper island, with intercity matches. It would also be possible to play matches against Vancouver clubs if desired. Whatever plan is decided upon it is time the officials did something to get the game out of the rut.

Jack Dempsey, who has made more money out of the fight game than any other man in the history of the ring, is certainly taking it on the chin from the sports writers and the boxing press. Dempsey will soon start a tour of Pacific Coast cities and the newspaper boys all along the line are harping on the gutter and his smiling countenance has been a magnet for boxing fans whether he was filling the role of fighter or of a boxing referee.

"And then Jack had to spoil it all."

"Faced with the need of ready money, he fell for the wrestling racket. The great ex-champion succumbed to the lure of the mat syndicate, and is doing one night stands with the grubs and grubs, a class he had always ridiculed and evaded."

"No wrestling show is complete without the referee taking a punch at one of the big, bad men, or vice versa. That is right up Dempsey's alley. So, every now and then, for newspaper purposes, Jack gets into a wrangle with one of the perspiring behemoths. The wrestler takes a fall, and the spectators howl their approval. It's good, clean sport."

"A few of the gullible will always scribe the bait and make himodroming profitable in athletics, but as for Jack Dempsey, the great fighter, rather remember the Giant Killer as the great fighting man who conquered Willard, Firpo, Carpenter and Gibbons."

Keel Moulded For Sopwith's Endeavor

Gosport, Eng., Nov. 21.—The first step toward construction of the new America's Cup challenger, T. O. M. Sopwith's yacht Endeavor, was taken today when the keel, weighing between eighty and ninety tons, was moulded with a watchmaker's precision.

Under the supervision of Charles Nicholson, the designer, nine huge cauldrons of molten metal engulfed their contents into the mould, lined with the finest red sand brought especially from Yorkshire.

Varsity Expected To Send Over Good Team For Contests

Probable Date For Event December 7 Or 14; Arrangements Going Ahead

Kiwanis Charities To Gain Proceeds

Only Stars to Compete in Major Contests But Open Junior Races Listed

Plans for Victoria's first invitational indoor track and field meet were being laid to-day as Archie McKinnon, physical director of the Y.M.C.A., and leading coach here, went ahead with arrangements to have stars of the University of British Columbia compete against the pick of the local ones.

It was expected December 7 or 14 would be the date selected for the event which is an outgrowth of the first meet of its kind held in the Horse Show Building. The meet will again be staged to raise funds for Kiwanis charities.

Decision to ask Varsity track men to participate in the indoor meet was reached late in the outdoor season, when members of the Blue and Gold squad expressed a wish to come across to Victoria for a dual meet with the Y.M.C.A.

Although the major events will be invitational, several open races for juniors and girl performers will be included in the programme.

While the actual selection of events for the meet will be left in the hands of Varsity for final approval, Coach McKinnon to-day stated he expected the track section would include a fifty yards straight away dash, a 220-yard sprint, quarter-mile, half-mile and mile runs and a relay.

In the field division athletes will go after honors in the running broad jump, the high jump, hop-step-and-jump, pole vault and shot put, it is expected.

In addition to these, there will be open events for juniors and girls staged during the programme. Besides lending additional interest to the meet, the inclusion of these races will furnish breathing spells for the spectators.

Although nothing definite has been learned early to-day, it was expected the Varsity team for the meet would include such stars as Joe Roberts, Victoria sprinter now attending the University of British Columbia; Bobby Gaul, colorful dashman who has won the Blue and Gold uniform for many years on the track and rugby teams; Bob Cairns, basketball player and good miler; Milt Parsons, decathlon performer, and Billy Heron, another outstanding U.B.C. athlete.

Victoria's selection will most probably include such men as Joe Addison, rated one of the classiest runners in western Canada; Owen Bentley, rapidly improving sprinter; Art and Chuck Chapman and Jim Cowan, field stars, and Chuck Cunningham, one of the province's best half-milers. The above are all members of the Y.M.C.A. senior squad. Ray Kersey, who made such a remarkable showing in defeating Bob Cairns in the indoor half-mile early in the year, will be one of the unattached boys to watch if he enters for the proposed contests.

JUNIOR TALENT

Probable junior talent for the show will include Lorne McGregor, Paul Rowe, Ben Vess, Bill Thompson, Doug Feden, Bobby Anderson and other promising young material in the city.

An invitation will also be extended to Chuck McDonald, Navy coach, to coach the junior team. Other outstanding performers in the city will also have an opportunity to match their ability against the U.B.C. and Y.M.C.A. men.

After the success of the maiden endeavor in the indoor field early last year, those arranging the coming event look forward to even greater success than the first attempt. Many features are being considered to add color to the meet. A band will be secured and efforts are being made to have the comedy element looked after.

Goalie Worters Breaks Finger

FOUR INTERIOR HOCKEY SQUADS

Trail, Kimberley, Nelson and Rossland Will Have Teams This Season

Former Professional Players Acting as Coaches of Amateur Outfits

Nelson, Nov. 21.—The Kootenays seem assured of real fast hockey this coming season. Last year Trail and Kimberley only were in the senior loop but this year Nelson and Rossland have re-entered the league.

Trail will start with practically the same team that won them the title last year. Kimberley has a strengthened aggregation coached by Jack Pratt, former pro from the coast. Nelson has a brand new lineup made up mostly of Calgary material under the coaching of Jack Carr, former Boston Bruin goal minder. Rossland is lining up a strong aggregation and it all depends upon the weatherman.

D. St. Denis is again president of the league and schedules will be drawn as soon as ice present itself. At present Trail is on the ice, the smelter city boasting an artificial ice sheet.

THREE SOCCER GAMES BILLED

Garrison, Undeclared Wednesday League Leaders, Meet James Bay

Three matches will be played to-morrow afternoon in the Wednesday Football League. Garrison, undefeated leaders of the loop, will meet the James Bay Liberals at Central Park; Hudson's Bay will engage the Navy at Heywood Avenue, and the Macabees will oppose Spencer's at Beacon Hill. Allcock will referee at the Central Park. Woodley at Heywood and Johnson at Beacon Hill. Games start at 2:30 o'clock.

Should the Garrison win to-morrow and the second-place Bays suffer defeat the former will gain possession of the Haywood Cup. At the present time the Bays have a mathematical chance of tying the Garrison for first place. Some of the teams for to-morrow follow:

Macabees—Wilmshurst, T. Graves, Speller, Richardson, McConnel, Hill, Stewart W. Graves, Fieldhouse, Gibson Newell and Woolcock. Spencer's—McMillan Bissell, Munro, Cann, Bradley, Bradley, Chapman, Preston Brown, Lutton and Wilson.

WINSTON RETAINS TITLE

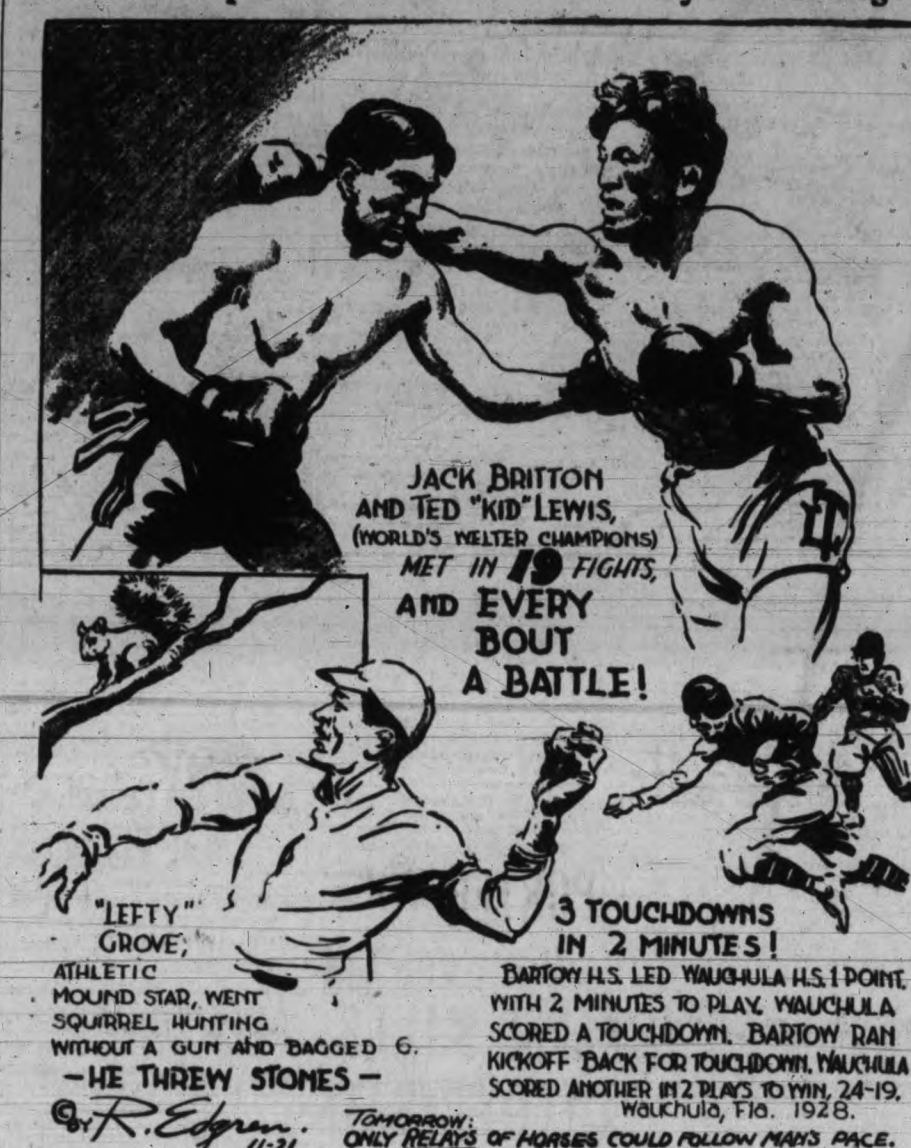

Boston, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Edward "Unknown" Winston, Negro, Hartford, yesterday evening retained his New England heavyweight title by defeating Dick Madden, Boston, in a twelve-round bout.

The Connecticut Negro, who weighed 191½, convinced two of the judges his lusty body attack earned him the award, but the referee voted it a draw. Madden scaled 185.

After the success of the maiden endeavor in the indoor field early last year, those arranging the coming event look forward to even greater success than the first attempt. Many features are being considered to add color to the meet. A band will be secured and efforts are being made to have the comedy element looked after.

Two Victoria West Players Are Ahead

Only notable change in the scoring averages for players in the first division of the Victoria Coast Football League following Saturday's two matches is that Tommy Musgrave, inside right for the Victoria West, has moved into undisputed possession of second place. Musgrave has five goals for a total of ten points. He scored one goal Saturday against the Saanich Thistles but failed to gain on "Scotty" Robinson, leader of the averages, who kicked off a goal to boost his point total to eighteen. Robinson is centre forward for the Wests.

Five players, A. McMillan, Victoria City; N. Morgan and E. Bordo, Thistles, and M. Wagland and B. Barneswell, Esquimalt, are tied for third position, each with eight points.

The battle for the best average for goalies continues to be close, with Louis De Costa, Esquimalt, out in front this week by the margin of a single goal over Wally Rowe, Thistles.

Seattle Sea Hawks And Calgary Take Ice Loop Openers

Former Spring Surprise Defeat on Edmonton 3 to 1 in Northwestern League

TIGERS IN WIN OVER VANCOUVER

Dutch Gainer, Former Boston Star, Figures in Two of Calgary Goals

Calgary Tigers and Seattle Sea Hawks were perched on the top rung of the Northwestern Professional Hockey League ladder to-day as the result of victories yesterday evening in the opening games of the schedule.

The smooth-functioning Tigers had a comparatively easy time subduing Vancouver Lions at Vancouver, ending the game on the long end of a 3 to 1 score, while at Seattle Frank Foyston's Sea Hawks turned back Edmonton Eskimos by a similar score, in a surprise victory.

Dutch Gainer, former Boston Bruins star in the National Hockey League, was instrumental in the Calgary victory. Gainer figured in two of Tigers' scores yesterday evening, scoring the first goal unassisted four minutes after the game opened, and making the play for Johnny Houbregs to flip in the second and near the end of the period.

With two minutes to go in the third period, Manager Guy Faries pulled goalie Red Hardaker off the ice and sent in four forwards as a last resort that brought success when Charlie Mason flipped the puck past Moose Cusker with thirty seconds to go to the final whistle.

EDMONTON FADES

Gordon "Duke" Keats and his squad of veteran campaigners held their own with the youthful Seattle team during the first period, but faded in the final two periods.

Les Whittles opened the scoring in the first when he took Gilhooley's pass to beat Robertson in the Eskimos net. Gagne tied the score near the end of the period on a pass from Keats.

From then on it was Seattle's game. The second period had barely got under way when Hemmerling grabbed Dyck's pass and kicked in Sea Hawks' second counter and Harper added a third counter a few minutes later.

Lineups and summaries follow:

Seattle—Van der Horst, Anderson, Savage, Gainer, Sutherland and Coupes.

TAKE VOTE ON GRID PROTEST

Governors of Western Canada Rugby Union to Deal With Deer Lodge's Claim

Manitoba Union Officials Object to Manner Protest Is Being Handled.

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—Executives of the Manitoba Rugby Football Union yesterday expressed objection to the manner in which M. L. Lieberman, Edmonton, president of the W.C.R.F.U., has called for the vote to be taken on the Deer Lodge protest against a decision rendered in their game against Calgary Altamans November 11.

Instructions Manitoba's representatives on the Western Union received yesterday said the vote must be registered within ten days, the evidence from Calgary against the protest must be in each individual's hands in eight days, and the votes shall be recorded through the president.

The Manitoba union's executive sent the following wire to President Lieberman:

"Following points must be clarified or changed:

"1. Name definite days from which eight and ten-day periods date.

"2. All evidence in opposition to the protest must be cleared through secretary to give authenticity to W.C.R.F.U. records.

"3. In protection to yourself vote must be recorded with secretary in usual manner."

Edmonton, Nov. 21.—The mail vote of governors of the Western Canada Rugby Football Union on the protest of Winnipeg Deer Lodge in the western junior final will be carried on at originally planned.

This is the reply of President M. L. Lieberman of the Western Union yesterday evening to criticisms from Winnipeg on the manner in which the vote would be taken. Eight to ten days, dating from November 18, would be allowed for the replies.

Deer Lodge protested the victory of Calgary Altamans November 11 when the Calgary team won the western Canada junior title.

Duncan, Nov. 21.—By a single basket margin Duncan Shell Oilers sent the touring Wilkeson Redmen down to defeat in the second game of their Mand basketball tour here on Saturday evening, the final score being 31 to 29 for the home club. In the preliminary, Standard Steam Laundry girls overcame the Duncan quintette 35 to 23 in an interesting exhibition.

Neither the Redmen nor the home-towners were on their shooting in the feature, but provided an exceptionally interesting battle with the score seeing right up to the end.

Pitt dropped in the deciding counter for Duncan after Fothergill had offed the Redmen's last shot.

When he brought Duncan from behind with a three basket rally.

Shells retained the ball during the last few seconds of play and the visitors were unable to overcome their lead.

Ed Evans refereed the senior game and V. Kennel the girls' fixture.

Fractures Leg In Duncan Rugby Game

Duncan, Nov. 21.—A friendly rugby match was played at Duncan on Sunday between the local Olympic committee and the last International Olympic committee to appreciate that committee and the German Olympic body of its stand.

A guarantee of no discrimination against Jews given by the German delegation to the last International Olympic committee session has been violated, the resolution said, "if not by direct restriction, certainly indirectly by the withdrawal from them of the rights of German citizens and of a reasonable opportunity to train, prepare for and take part in sports competition in general and in the Olympic Games in particular."

Only one voice was raised in dissent, that of Dietrich Wortmann, of the German-American Club of New York.

Wortmann denied Jews were being excluded from athletic activity in Berlin or elsewhere in Germany.

Montreal, Nov. 21.—Exchange fluctuations are hampering international trade and are "retarding" in their scope, Sir Robert Borden told the annual meeting of Barclays Bank (Canada) held here to-day. Despite the complexity in the relations of the Canadian dollar to sterling, a largely increased interchange of products within the Empire affords assurance that mutually beneficial results are arising from the Ottawa Conference of last year, said the president.

B.C. Electric Opens Arguments on Wages

Company Presents Case Before Board in Vancouver To-day; Employees to Be Heard

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Nov. 21.—Before a conciliation board appointed by the Federal Department of Labor, B.C. Electric officers to-day began their arguments to substantiate their recent demand for a reduction of 10 per cent in the wages of motormen and conductors in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster.

At the opening of the hearing it was agreed the men should withhold all answers to points raised by the company until the latter had finished his case. The company continued to present its case at the noon adjournment.

With Judge J. N. Ellis as chairperson, the board comprises A. O. McCallister, named by the company, and Dr. Lyle Telford, named by the employees.

W. G. Murray, President of the company; W. Saville and E. W. Arnott are presenting the company's case, the employees are represented by H. W. Speed, E. R. Griffin, A. V. Lofting, A. J. Bond and J. P. Torrence of Victoria.

"WITHIN FAMILY"

Opening the case for the company, Mr. Murray said he had hoped a settlement might have been reached "within the family." He was certain the merits of the case warranted even further reductions than those first asked. He explained the expiring agreement had been in effect for six years, being renewed in 1930, with a supplementary

Georgia Newsprint Is An Experiment

Canadian Press
St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 21.—While the experimental manufacture of newsprint from Georgia pine trees was a success, the effect will eventually be felt chiefly in the shipments of European pulpwood to the United States through eastern ports, according to John Ball, division general manager of the Certain Products Corporation, said to-day.

Nine newspapers in the state of Georgia are to be supplied with newsprint from the new Georgia pine, run off under Mr. Ball's direction at the mill at Thorold, near here.

The southern pine could certainly compete with Canadian spruce in quality, but it is doubtful if it could be laid down in Canada cheaply enough to compete in cost with the Canadian timber, said Mr. Ball.

He said no further experiments were anticipated at present.

Associated Press

New York, Nov. 21.—The stock market was a little nervous to-day despite another mark up of ten cents an ounce in the domestic gold price and a further decline in dollar rates. The alcohol and metals were heavy, but the rails and a few industrial issues were fairly steady. The close was easy.

Transfers approximated 1,850,000 shares.

The monetary unit lost a maximum of about seven cents to sterling. Equities received little stimulus from grain and cotton, both of which followed a narrow range. United States Government securities again dropped.

Continental Can and American Can were up fractionally to more than a point. National Distillers, Schenley, American Commercial Alcohol and United States Industrial Alcohol lost 1 to 3. U.S. Smelting, McIntyre, Cupine, Alaska, Juneau and American Smelting showed similar losses.

By Victor Kuhn, Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Nov. 21.—Financial markets displayed a few cloudy spots to-day, notwithstanding the fact that the gold price was again boosted a dime an ounce and international dollar rates slipped to lower levels. Aside from nervousness in Domestic and Canadian securities were rather narrow.

Alcohol shares were a bit heavy. National Distillers, American Commercial and U.S. Industrial Alcohol sagged around two to three points. The metal group also lagged, with McIntyre Potcupine, Dome, Cerro de Pasco, Alaska Juneau and American Smelting losing one to two.

The rails proved a sustaining factor

Issues of Santa Fe, Baltimore and Ohio, N.Y. Central and Pennsylvania holding moderate advances. Western Union and Johns-Manville yielded fractions to a point or more.

Softness of the alcohol was attributed to day and specialist in the securities attributed their action to the further marking up of the R.F.C. gold price and another decline in the dollar in relation to foreign currencies.

In other parts of the market, the list no positive trend was defined in the comparatively light dealings early. Bonds of established investment rating were rather irregular within narrow swings. In 1930, the domestic call series in the foreign division were firm under the influence of improving currency exchange rates.

Bennett Says Ottawa May Start Public Works in All Provinces in Spring

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Definite assurance legislation providing for establishment of a central bank in Canada would be submitted at the next session of Parliament, and an intimation the government had been seriously considering an extensive programme of public works and undertakings, possibly next spring, was given by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in a speech here yesterday evening.

Embarkation on a public works programme would not be attempted at the present time to any great extent, the Prime Minister said, because the government believed it unwise to enter on such a programme until financial and exchange conditions permitted the control of the Dominion became more settled.

Premier Heard in Address Broadcast By Radio Across Canada

There has become clearly imperative for Canada to exercise the greatest possible measure of monetary independence, and this it can do only if equipped for wise and timely action when exchange conditions permit the control of the Dominion became more settled.

"This, of course," does not exhaust the functioning of a central bank," he continued. "It will place skilled and impartial financial advice at the disposal of the government. The regulation of the volume of credit is important as a factor in influencing the level of economic activity, and therefore of prices, and this on a scale which a central bank can most effectively and impartially undertake."

Girl Who Earns Own Living Must Be Rough and Tough to Compete With Men, Cries Business Girl; Nonsense, Replies Dorothy Dix—The More of a Lady She Is, the Better Her Chances of Success

CAN THE business girl be a lady and succeed? I say YES. One of my correspondents says emphatically NO. She writes: "You said the other day that in these days of hard-boiled young girls the lady threatened to become an extinct species. Let me tell you that it is necessary if she expects to get along in the business world: The stay-at-home girl with plenty of money and parents to take care of her may remain gentle and refined in speech and manners, and considerate of the feelings of others, but not the girl who has to get out and hustle for her own bread and butter. "What would your lady do if she had to face the grind of an office every day where she had to listen to men curse and swear, and stand for all kinds of familiarities, and hear suggestive stories and comments? That's what we business girls have to do, and naturally we get sophisticated and wise. We have to be tough. We have to be rough and ready, or we would come to death. When you compete with men you have to forget that you are a woman and fight with them on their own ground."

This statement sums up pretty accurately the point of view of the average modern young woman, who thinks that in order to get along she has to be one of "the boys" and drink and swear and tell risqué stories and be shocked at nothing.

In this I totally disagree with her, because I think that when a woman throws away her womanliness she casts into the discard her trump card, and this is just as true in business life as it is in social life. For sex is a fixed fact that cannot be altered. When a woman ceases to be a woman she does not automatically become a man. She just makes of herself a poor imitation that is nothing, that is neither male nor female, and that has all the faults and weaknesses of both, with the virtues of neither.

Moreover, it is folly for a girl to coarsen herself down to the level of the men she happens to be thrown with, because she can never really acquire their technique. Her swearing always has the marks of an amateur about it. It lacks spontaneity and flavor. When she gets drunk she is never humorous or amusing. She is simply bestial. And when she tells smutty stories they do not arouse laughter in the listener, they make him want to weep. A man may be profane and tipsy and vulgar and get away with it. But no woman can. The woman who drinks too much and who is foul-mouthed fills us with such disgust that we do not want to have anything to do with her.

In the best business houses a great stress now is put upon the men being gentlemen, and I do not think that any girl would be less esteemed by her employer for looking and acting like a lady.

On the contrary, I am very sure that the girl who dresses quietly and sensibly, who is reserved and modest, and who keeps herself to herself, as our grandmothers used to say, would stand a better chance of promotion than would the flashy, loud-talking, cigarette-smoking girl who is always draped over some man's desk swapping putrid jokes with him.

In fact, often and often again do I hear men wind up their encomiums of some indispensable woman employee or assistant by saying, "And she is a perfect lady." But never yet have I heard one say of a valued female employee that she was a regular rouser.

The truth is that deep in his heart every man has a reverence for the qualities that go to make up a lady. Gentleness in manner and speech. Reticence. Modesty. Fineness. The inability to say or do a coarse or vulgar thing. They appeal to whatever is best in his soul. They arouse his chivalry and he is far more likely to give a helping hand to the woman who possesses them than he is to the woman who is without them.

The theory that it is necessary for a girl to be hard-boiled in order to succeed in business is also another fallacy. Women and men are made differently and they must work along different lines. No woman can crash the gate. She has to find the key that unlocks it. No woman has the strength to beat a man in a rough-and-tumble battle. She has to win out through subtlety.

The aggressive, fighting woman seldom gets anywhere. She antagonizes every man with whom she comes in contact. He realizes that he is at a disadvantage with her because he can neither deal with her as a woman nor strike back at her as if she were a man. So she misses her opportunities and loses out at every turn.

On the other hand, the woman who is gentle and ladylike and who goes quietly on her way, which may be a way that never swerves an inch from her determined goal, awakens no resentment in the men with whom she has to deal. They like her. They admire her courage and determination in trying to make a living for herself instead of being a parasite upon some one else, and nine times out of ten they help her. It is a question of method, and sugar always catches more flies than vinegar.

Of course, girls must go into business now, but I see no reason why one should be less a lady in an office than in a parlor. And I believe, it pays them to take the manners, the speech, the modesty and the reserve of a lady with them wherever they go. They are never excess baggage.

A Journey to Persia

RELIGION AND RUGS While we are visiting Persia we see a Persian kneeling on a rug. He has taken off his shoes, and is bowing his head in prayer. It is a custom in some parts of the Orient to bend over so far that the face touches the ground; and this man keeps bending until his face touches the rug.

Persian on rug, bowing in prayer

With a Persian about religion and the prophet Mohammed. "From time to time," said the Persian, "a new prophet appears in the world, and we should obey him even though he tells us to do something different from what has been taught us before."

"How shall we know such a prophet when he comes?" the Englishman asked. "The signs are these: that he is wise in true wisdom; that he speaks words which create new things; that his words go to the hearts of men and make them willing to give up wealth, comfort and fame—even life itself. Mohammed had enemies. He was called a madman; but his words have lived to this day."

Persians pray while kneeling on their famous rugs; and they also use the rugs to lie on and to sit on. Long ago it was the custom of these people to sleep on the bare ground; but they learned to weave rugs which would serve as "beds."

Excellent wool is obtained from sheep which browse about the highlands of Persia. This wool is combed, dyed and woven into rugs which are famous all over the earth. People in each of thirty districts of Persia have fallen into the custom of weaving special kinds of rugs. When these rugs are sold in foreign parts they go by the names of the districts from which they came.

Persian rugs came into use in Europe more than 600 years ago. Their beauty of design and their long-wearing qualities have made them popular, and thousands of them are sold each year despite the high cost.

Piglet, Maple Creek, Prince Albert, Cowley and Islay areas in Saskatchewan contributed to shipments that will leave November 30 on St. Glenworth.

Salmon Cannery Plan Gathering

San Francisco, Nov. 21.—Pacific Coast salmon cannery men will meet in Seattle November 28 to continue their efforts to work out details of full compliance with NRA requirements. E. B. Deming, head of the Pacific American Fisheries Company, announced here today.

Cannery men from California, Oregon and Washington recently concluded a three-day meeting at Del Monte without reaching any definite agreement.

Deming said the cannery men "desire to fully co-operate with NRA and administration at Washington, but are in a particularly difficult situation inasmuch as the products of the salmon industry are an important factor in the cost of living."

NEW BRUNSWICK INDUSTRIES GROW

Canadian Press
Saint John, N.B., Nov. 21.—"From figures we have received so far we are looking for an increase of several million dollars in the payroll in the New Brunswick area as compared with those of 1932," states John A. Sinclair, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

He disclosed the estimated full payroll for work in the lumber woods showed well over 50 per cent more men working in the woods than at this time last year.

"To-day," Mr. Sinclair said, "men in the woods in New Brunswick are receiving from $20 to $30 a month with board. Last year the average was from $15 to $20 a month."

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

suffers from indigestion

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis or stomach ulcers. Don't do an acid stomach with peppin or artificial digestants that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little Bismarck Magnesia, and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bismarck Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. Your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bismarck Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive. (Adv.)

Freighter Golden Tide and U.S.S. Arkansas in Mishap in San Pedro Harbor

San Pedro, Nov. 21.—Naval officers and ship surveyors to-day were investigating circumstances and damage connected with Sunday's collision in the outer harbor between the freighter Golden Tide and the U.S.S. Arkansas, of the battleship division.

The Golden Tide, a unit of the fleet of the Oceanic and Oriental Navigation Company, received damage to her bow plates and local shipyards were bidding for the repair work. The battleship received only minor damage, and will not have to go into drydock. Cause of the accident is not known.

This is the second time in a few weeks that a freighter and a United States battleship have been in collision. Earlier this month the Ss. Silverpalm and the U.S.S. Chicago collided in the fog off San Francisco with the loss of three sailors and much damage to both ships. The Silverpalm is still at San Francisco. She was on her way from British Columbia port to the United Kingdom at the time of the mishap.

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—In the death of E. G. Noble, first aid instructor of the Canadian Pacific Railway last week, a valued staff member whose duty for a quarter of a century or more had been to superintend the first aid instruction given the company's staff from Port William to Victoria. Mr. Noble's death occurred suddenly, after a cerebral hemorrhage, at St. Boniface Hospital. He was in his sixty-second year.

Transferred from the Montreal office of the company in 1910, the late Mr. Noble acted as first aid instructor covering western lines since that date. He was directly responsible for the high standing of company employees as first aid experts throughout the west. Only this year he was invested by His Excellency, the Governor-General and Association, in the decoration of "serving brother" in the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. This was in recognition of long service in the work of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and Association, in which he had been active since 1895. He held the nursing certificate and pendant and first aid certificate and medal with several "badges" as indicative of his persistence in the work of the order.

His passing is widely mourned. A widow, he leaves a son and daughter, John in Montreal and Doris (Mrs. Hart), also in Montreal.

LATE CAPTAIN LAID AT REST

Seafaring friends in Victoria, who remembered him in the early days, turned out yesterday afternoon to pay their last tribute to Capt. John Everett Christian, who died suddenly early Saturday morning. The funeral took place this afternoon, with six Winnipeg first aid instructors as pallbearers.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Henry, who conducted the service, paid a touching tribute to the late Capt. Christian, referring to his early days in Victoria, in connection with the sailing industry. The hymns sung were "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me." A wealth of flowers covered the casket and hearse.

Pallbearers, all old friends of the late captain, were George Roberts, Capt. Willis Balcom and Capt. William Fletcher, who were sailing and whaling with him more than a quarter of a century ago. C. Nickerson, A. Monthie and H. Spedding.

Interment took place in the family plot in the Ross Bay Cemetery.
